

ARMISTICE ENDED AT ONE THIS AFTERNOON AND THE FIGHTING MAY BEGIN NOW AT ALMOST ANY MINUTE

QUESTION WHETHER PRESIDENT OF MEXICAN REPUBLIC WILL COMPLY WITH DEMANDS OF THE INSURGENTS.

WAIT FOR FINAL WORD

Peace Envoys Near Juarez Anxiously Await Dispatch From the City of Mexico Before Proceeding
In the Present Matter.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]
El Paso, May 6.—The armistice was officially broken off at one o'clock when a message came from Minister Llanos addressed to Benito at Madro's headquarters. It is inferred that it contains private assurances as to the attitude of the government.

The fact that the message is on its way to Benito may deter the rebels from taking any action.

Carbanal the federal envoy, this morning declared that he had not received from Mexico City a full answer as yet to the proposition submitted by the Madros.

It is expected that the Madros camp that the announcement of the intention of Diaz will be made before the day was over. Armistice which expired at noon has been extended somewhat.

All Quiet Yet.
Mexico City, May 6.—The city was quiet this morning and no announcement of the government's attitude towards the rebels demand for the retirement of Diaz is not forthcoming as yet. A cabinet meeting is being held today but none of those concerned would say that the President has already resigned.

May Be Impaired.
Mexico City, May 6.—Dispatches from Washington interpreted mean intervention may be considered impossible if the peace negotiations fail.

Not Attacked.
El Paso, May 6.—At one-thirty this afternoon, Madros announced that he would not consent to the renewal of an armistice he would not attack Juarez today.

Ominous Quiet.
[BY UNITED PRESS.]

Mexico City, Mexico, May 6.—Peace or war in Mexico was expected to be definitely settled before the passing of today. The armistice in Chihuahua expired today, and unless a satisfactory answer is made by President Diaz to the Madros and insurgent demand for his resignation, bloody warfare will be resumed for months to come.

Those close to Diaz say his actions have already constituted a negative reply. Rising has already started here, led by Madros's sympathizers.
If Diaz remains in charge the results can not be foretold.

Trouble Coming.
Washington, May 6.—High authorities on international law declared here today that Mexico may see herself involved in most serious complications, not only with the United States, but European nations, because of the shelling of the fortified city of Matatlan by Mexican federal gunboats.

Await Word.
Washington, May 6.—With every detail arranged for intervention, President Taft and high army officials awaited the answer of President Diaz to the insurgent demand that he retire.

five-tenths over a similar period last year, due principally to pneumonia.

ruary and March of 1911 there were 23,040 deaths reported to the state bureau of vital statistics.

MAY ISSUE WRIT FOR MAYOR SEIDEL

Milwaukee's Mayor May Have to Show Resignation Papers of Former Alderman, Victor L. Berger.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]
Milwaukee, May 6.—Mayor Seidel may be called into court under manda-mus proceedings to show the resignation papers of Alderman Victor L.
Berger to show when Berger's resignation took effect. Alderman Huber, formation, who refused. Attorneys for the alderman asserted today they may take this means of forcing the mayor

STATE WILL REST IN DIETZ TRIAL AFTER DEPUTY EXAMINED

Prosecution Will Close Today After Testimony of Deputy Thorbahn of Montana.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]
Hayward, Wis., May 6.—The conclusion of the state's case in the Dietz trial is expected this afternoon. The only important witness left to testify is Deputy Fred Thorbahn, who led the famous deputy "army" against the Dietz cabin. He will arrive here from Montana promptly at two o'clock and will immediately take the stand. Testimony of witnesses at the morning session tended to show that Dietz had on several occasions forcefully resisted legal warrants for his arrest.

The state will attack the defense this afternoon with its best card, "The prosecution will offer proof that the bullet found in Thor's body were of the Winchester make. The letter
"W" is imprinted on the lead. The Dietz ammunition was of Winchester make according to the prosecution.

Not a Winchester bullet was fired by the deputies. Thorbahn who testified late this afternoon purchased all the ammunition for the deputies from St. Paul and it was of the U.
M. Canale.

Judge Held declared at noon that he would limit John Dietz and Mrs.
Dietz, Leslie, one day's argument to the jury.

John Dietz, his wife, son and daughter, will not take the stand in their trial for the alleged murder of Deputy Thor. John Dietz announced as probably today, "My work without oath is as good as all the testimony under oath that has been given. I think I will take chances on my address to the jury which may take several days."

Mrs. Dietz and Leslie also announced that they would address the jury.
District Attorney Williams said at noon that the state will undoubtedly close today and the defense will begin Monday.

Many witnesses testified today.

VIOLATIONS OF THE CHILD LABOR LAWS

Managers of Local Telegraph Companies Paid Fines For Employing Boys Under 16 Years After Six O'clock P. M.

Fines of twenty-five dollars and costs, the minimum penalty fixed by the law were assessed against O. C.
Piper and H. R. Fitch, managers of the Postal Telegraph and Western Union Telegraph companies' offices in this city in municipal court today.

The two men were arraigned on complaint of State Factory Inspector D.
D. Evans, on charges of employing boys under sixteen years of age after six o'clock in the afternoon. The state statutes provide that no child under sixteen years of age shall be employed in any capacity except to carry newspapers or work in a store, after six o'clock p. m. In the complaint against Piper it was stated that he had kept Roy Hayland, messenger for the Postal company at work after the hour stipulated and William McCallan, messenger for the Western Union company, was named in the complaint against Fitch. Both men pleaded guilty and paid the fine.

Chided Minority Leader Mann In Speech On Free List Bill
Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, May 6.—W. J. Fields, (Kentucky) "new democrat" member, began a debate on the free list bill in the house today by humorously chiding the minority leader Mann.
"I hope," he said, "that my speech will not worry the gentlemen from Illinois. It is not so much the speeches of the new democrats that worry the minority leader, but our presence here and a demonstration that over three the republican party."

"Sixty years ago there was a wedding. Mr. Republican Party married Miss Money. They started in to live happy ever after, but there were no legitimate children. They adopted, however, three children, Andrew, John D. and J. P. and trouble after trouble followed until they have been driven from their home."

game was a much one-sided one, the score being 16 to 2 in favor of Stough-was a hard one to bump up against, but by lack of practice they were not in it at all yesterday's game. How-and from now on they will be up and doing and be in readiness for any

ARMY MOBILIZATION PROVES RESERVES A NECESSARY FEATURE

Head of Army of United States Discusses Strength and Weaknesses Disclosed in Recent Move
To Texas.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]
Washington, D. C., May 6.—In the first official statement of the results of the mobilization of troops in Texas, written exclusively for the United Press by the head of the army, the strength and weakness of the organization was revealed at San Antonio, and clearly defined, as follows:

"The mobilization at San Antonio shows that the regular troops are ready to leave their garrisons, equipped for the field on very short notice.

"The Tenth Infantry at Fort Benjamin Harrison was aboard the train 18 hours after receiving its orders. Where there was great delay in getting aboard trains, it was due to the inability of the railroads to supply transportation.

"The Seventeenth Infantry from Ft.
McPherson, Ga., was in camp and under canvas at San Antonio three and a half days after receiving its order and all the troops sent to San Antonio were under arms at that place ten days after orders were issued from the war department. All the regular army in the United States could have been mobilized in the same period.

"As the infantry, cavalry and artillery reached San Antonio they were divided into brigades, which, together with the auxiliary troops, were combined into a division. Commanders had to be selected for the division and brigades and they, in turn had to select their staffs.

"These organizations and staffs were working together for the first time as such. This should not be a part of time organization. As thus organized the division was at about one-half war strength; that is, the organizations were at peace strength. Approximately 10,000 men were needed to complete the division. Had these men been mobilized under our system, they would have been raw recruits and would have required many weeks of training before being fit for campaign. In foreign countries this increment of men is obtained from organized reserves which are absolutely essential to insure a speedy change from a peace to a war footing.

"This total lack of reserves is the greatest weakness of our system. It illustrates by our mobilization in Texas.
Should we have to mobilize a large force many weeks would elapse before our organizations could take the field at full strength. Public opinion probably would not stand for this delay.
The result would be organizations taking the field at great disadvantage, either at increased strength, with large numbers of men poorly instructed in their duties and little fitted to endure the exposure of campaign.

"We can organize a reserve in this country if we make our enlistments in the regular army and in the militia for ten years, two or three years service with the colors, and the remaining seven or eight years absolutely free of all obligations to come to the colors, except in case of war, free from riot duty, and local state duty, and to come to maneuvers every other year for a period of eight days. Now we are losing 20,000 or 40,000 a year from the militia, and regular army combined about a third of which service being re-enlistments.

If we give these men $1.50 a month, which congress might think wise, in eight years. These men would be instructed men who have passed through the regular army or the militia.
That would give us 280,000 men who would stand right behind the regular army, approximately 100,000 men, with a militia of probably 150,000 men, and that would give us something like 530,000 men immediately available.

The only obligation these men would have in addition to the service obligation is to keep the adjutant general of the army and the adjutant general of the states informed of their whereabouts.

MOTHERS' CORNER.

WHAT WILL THE HARVEST BE?

When I dropped in for a friendly chat with the mother of Jane, I found her frantically sewing on a flimsy lace sock for the little girl. The flimsy are neighbors of mine, and I love the little girl whom I saw standing at the window—her great watery eyes watching the merry children out in the spring sunshine.

"I have been for a tramp in the woods," I told the mother of Jane. "The air has been a wonderful tonic to my nerves. The fresh new greens of the trees are a rest to the eyes, it is so beautiful out. Why don't you put up your sewing and take Jane out in the sunlight?" I suggested.

"O, I can't," said the mother of Jane in a superior tone. "Jane is to dance before the Harmon Club tonight. I have worked for a week on her dress. It is just about finished now, but I am too tired to dress and go out."

"Jane, for goodness sake, stop that fighting and feeding," she added irritably to the five-year-old girl at the window.

I glanced at the flimsy on the mother's lap, which had both mother and child away from the life-giving spring air and sunshine for a week. But what of that? Isn't a lace dress in which to show off a child's trills of more importance than the air, the sunshine, and the throes of the earth?

"Come here, Jane, and let's try on your new dress."

A light passed over the waxen features of the wee girl as she came to her mother's call. She responded eagerly to the livery.

"Now, recite 'Little Orphan Annie' for the lady."

Summoning her small strength to respond to the pride in her mother's voice, Jane flung the lines of the poem, embellishing it with many contortions of body, and much upturning of the eyes that look like veritable moons in the wan little face.

"I can say another, Mama!" suggested the baby when she was through with 'Little Orphan Annie.' She was like her mother to the core, eager to show off.

"Poor little Jane! your dance for the lady," suggested the mother.

It was pretty though, the twirling little figure in the lace dress, but I lost interest in the intricate steps of the dance which kept crawling into my mind of the round faced, rosy cheeked children I had seen in the woods in the afternoon, dancing the mad dance of awakened nature to the song of Spring.

At seven-thirty that same evening—after my little ones were fast asleep—John and I passed the open windows of the Tilden home. The parlors were ablaze with light and filled with guests. Jane was quite ready for her evening performance, and her mother was probably showing off her tricks and—the little lace dress.

Returning from some calls at ten-thirty John and I dropped into a moving picture show. Beside us sat the Tildens.

"Jane did her dance just beautifully," proudly the mother of Jane informed me. "She was a little tired, so we thought we would drop in here and rest."

"What a place for a little girl of five years old to 'rest' at ten-thirty in the evening!"

The first film was that of The Night Riders. When the masked men bound a victim to a tree and lashed him into insensibility I took the hand of the little girl in mine and felt its convulsive quivering. The vivid pictures of the horror set my own pulses leaping and tore at my own strong nerves until they were on ragged edges.

Then what of the nerves of this little child, who could have been in bed many hours after a long day of basking in the sunshine and delving in the fragrant earth?

I looked at the mother of Jane. She was laughing.

"I could have wept for little Jane Tilden!"

At eleven-thirty we were walking home, my John and I. The lights in the Tilden home shone brightly.

"I wish that child would die," said John.

"O, John!" I exclaimed, shocked. "You, I wish she would die," insisted my husband. "It would be a mercy if she did. For if she lives—"

"What will the harvest be?" came the singing voice of little Jane Tilden to us through the open window to the loud applause of her foolish mother.

Sherbets, fancy ices, vanilla, chocolate and caramel ice cream received daily. Served in our handsome ice cream parlor.

COURAGE AND BLUFF

NEW YORKER MADE UP OF FIFTY SEVEN VARIETIES.

Southern Society Woman's Estimate of the Average Man and Woman That Make up Population of Gotham.

"New Yorkers are made up of fifty-seven varieties of courage and just a dash of bluff."

That is Miss Scotta Sorin's estimate of the men and women who so proudly sign New York after their names when travelling. Miss Sorin, a southern society woman and author, often has visited this city.

"You see," this young woman said, "my opinion of the people of this great little world of its own has been formed from studies made for some time, and whenever I think of a New Yorker—that is a person who has come to the city to make a livelihood and has won out and made good—I can only picture a creature of the most wonderful bravery in the world, for to merely exist, let alone work, in this place, one must have unlimited courage."

In a great place like New York no alibi work is permitted, and when one contemplates the numbers of young men and women who come here to work every year, without experience, without talent, and with a good will to do their best it is a courage almost beyond my understanding. They are entering fields of work and endeavor which are now nearly filled with experienced people; they are entering in the greatest competition imaginable, that of winning bread in a big, overcrowded city, in which every one is interested in himself and little thought is given to the other person.

But the dear New Yorkers are the funniest bluffers in the world. They are not maliciously so, but in every business, in every home, in all pleasures, there is just a little dash of bluff that adds a piquancy that you don't find in other people. They do know a good deal in many ways, but they always want one to think that they know just a trifle more.

"The bluff that always amuses me is the bluff of the New Yorker for the United States. Come to the point, what does he know about his United States? Not a thing, except what he has read and heard, for a New Yorker won't travel over his own country; but the moment he has the money he will sail for Europe, just as the man out west or in the smaller city will come to New York when he can afford it."

The Republic of Inman.

Where is the republic of Inman, which has lately gained an unenviable notoriety owing to the plague? Its name is not to be found in any historical or geographical index. It is to be found in the neighborhood of Primoff, to the south of the mountains of Bogalades, to the east of Sichuan, on the banks of the river Inman, which is a tributary of the river Inman. After this we expected to hear that it was inhabited by Lilliputians or Gargantians. The inhabitants are all hunters; it has its own laws, but no police, and like Moirice its chief delight is gambling; but with this difference, that the gambling is restricted to one month in the year and all the rest of the time it is forbidden under the severest penalties.

Severe penalties are meted out to thieves, who are discouraged by being buried alive. But perhaps as there are no police this punishment sounds worse than it really is. However, the country has one pleasant custom; it offers free hospitality to visitors for three days, who may demand the best room in any house. After that they must pay forty kopeks a day—not a very large sum. But if a visitor is unvarying enough to appear at the New Year he must give a present of fifteen rubles to celebrate the day.—From the Journal des Debats.

A Paris Plan.

Paris intends to make the city streets teach history to Paris children. The municipal council is expected soon to pass a bill requiring that the historical significance and dates of events shall be added to the street name signs. The streets are already placarded plainly with white letters on a blue background, not only at every street intersection, but on every angle of every building on every corner. Writing of the Chicago Daily News respondent of the Chicago Daily News says: "Practically every important street in the city is named in honor of some famous man or victory. Future signs, therefore, will read: 'Rue Rivoli—French victory in 1797'; 'Avenue Victor Hugo—French poet and novelist, 1802-85'; 'Rue Lincoln—famous president of the United States, 1809-65.'"

Enthusiasm.

"Was that ovation extended by people for whom the political leader has done favors?"

"To a certain extent; although most of the enthusiasm was worked up by people who hope he is going to do something for them."

Distinctness Misplaced.

"I have only one objection to music," said the unassuming man.

"And what is that?"

"As a rule you can't understand a word of a classical composition, and you aren't allowed to miss a syllable of a ragtime shocker."

Record to Be Proud Of.

Alfred H. Booth of Worcester, Mass., has been organist at St. Matthew's church for 50 years, and in that time has missed but one service.

BREACH-OVER MOROCCO.

Moroccan army on march. Below, Sultan Mulai Hafid of Morocco and his guard.

Paris.—The situation in Morocco resulting from the rebellion against Sultan Mulai Hafid, has led to talk of French intervention, by sending an army to the gates of Fez. The French government, however, has not reached any decision of this nature. For the moment France will merely reinforce her troops in the Chouhah district. This government adheres strictly to the Algeiras conference agreement.

The latest information from Fez states that the situation there is extremely grave. The defeat of the imperial troops on March 26 has had a great effect on the tribes, who have now all combined against the sultan. An attack on the capital even now is expected at any moment. It is comical it is believed that Fez must capitulate on account of want of troops, money and foodstuffs, these last having already reached famine prices. Morocco has been the country of many pretensions, and another has now appeared, the tribes around Fez having proclaimed an sultan Mulai Hafid, who is at present governor of Mequinez.

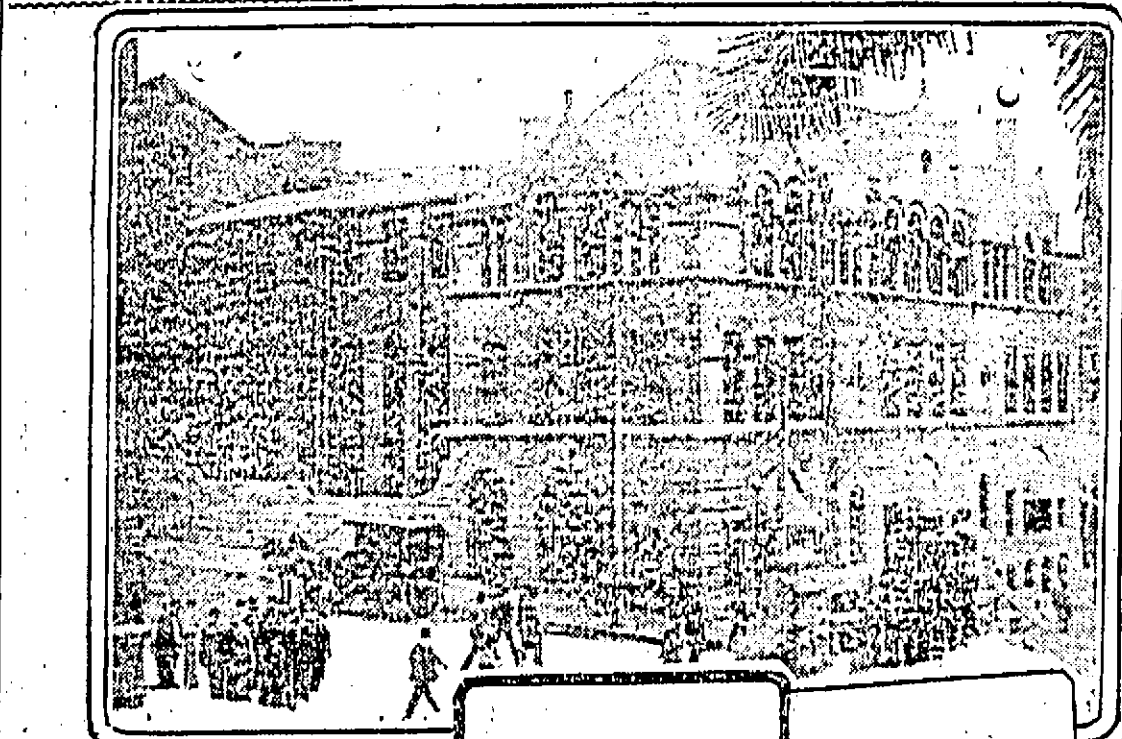

The present crisis in Morocco, however, is important not so much in itself as in the effect it is likely to have on the European situation. The conditions in the African country are a direct result of the interference of Germany back in 1905, when her action prevented France from taking over a large part of the territory and pacifying it. The outcome of the conference of Algeiras, which defined the spheres of France and Spain in Morocco has not proved wholly satisfactory, there having been various collisions of authority, and jealousy on the part of both. Spain fears, at this time, French intervention, which is the cause of the threatened breach, and to counteract the strength of that first led to French intervention. In the dispatch printed above, to accept the backing of Germany. It is this prospect which is likely to cause a serious situation in Europe.

Unquestionably, the only intervention that can settle finally the Moroccan trouble. It was the attacks on foreign subjects that first led to French intervention, and it is the recurrence or menace of such attacks that has compelled France to continue her occupation of Casablanca and the surrounding country on the western coast, and of Ujda and other points on the Algerian frontier.

But even the severe punishment inflicted on the offending natives in the past gives no security against fresh outbreaks. In a country like Morocco, where the people are broken up into separate and often mutually hostile tribes, it is almost impossible to carry out any permanent measure of pacification without a complete occupation of the country. Troops may enforce perfect submission and peace in one district, but outside its borders are other tribes, warlike and well armed, hating the foreigner and all his works, and ready at the first favorable opportunity to raid the pacified region. For some time past the situation in the district has been quite tranquil. The French have established fixed posts there, have built roads and bridges, opened markets and wells, encouraged trade, and founded schools and hospitals. But last January this civilizing work was interrupted by an attack of hostile tribesmen on a body of French troops, and such an outrage, if passed over, would be fatal to the peace of the region. It would foster the belief that the French were too weak to undertake reprisals and would encourage the hostile tribes to fresh acts of aggression. Accordingly pressure was brought on the government to undertake the punishment of the guilty tribe. On the other hand, objections were raised to any such action on the ground that it might involve France in a forward policy in Morocco. It was argued that the task of teaching the offenders a lesson should be left to the sultan. But he already pointed out the sultan in Morocco until the jealous powers of Europe can allow some nation a free hand to pacify the country.

PREPARE DEFENSE IN DYNAMITE CASE.

County jail at Los Angeles where the McNamara brothers and McManigal are confined. Lower right, W. A. Hammill, sheriff of Los Angeles, who is keeping close watch on the alleged dynamiters. At right, Judge C. M. Hilton, who will assist Attorney Clarence Darrow in the defense of the alleged dynamiters.

Los Angeles, Cal.—The defense and prosecution in the McNamara cases are rapidly bringing their plans to a head. The defense will be in the hands of Attorney Lee Rappaport of Indianapolis with Clarence Darrow as chief counsel and Judge Hilton as assistant. Mrs. McManigal, wife of the informer, will go to Los Angeles as chief witness for the prosecution. From sources authentic, though not official, it is learned that the McNamara brothers will be tried first and that McManigal, the informer, will plead guilty. In this way McManigal can give testimony against both J. B. and J. C. McNamara.

Happy Eskimos.

Eskimos are all children, contented, peaceable, honest and hospitable, without rulers and without ambition for fame or power. They live almost entirely on raw animal food, and this explains the absence of a number of diseases which are common to civilization. Salt water contains iodine, and all sea animals, as well as all who eat them, uncooked, absorb more or less of this iodine substance.

Biblical Literature.

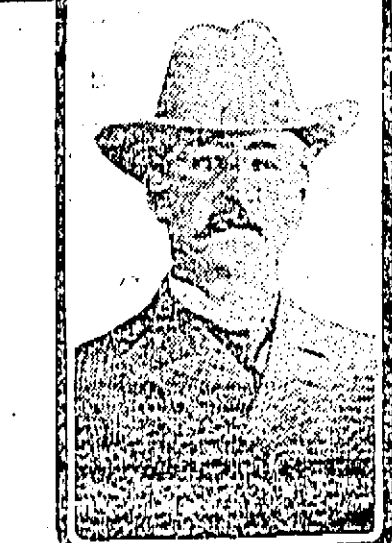

Almost every form of literature is represented in the Bible, from the war song, the lament and the lyric to the fable and the philosophical drama. Parables, enigmas, proverbs, stories, biographies, epistles, orations, and prayers are all found in this library of the literary activity of the Israelite race.

Dirt and Disease.

Dirt is the "perfect culture" of all disease and of all that delights in disease. There the microbes of all plagues live and move and have their being undisturbed by the broom or the mop, unafraid of the smell of soap, and never awakened from their rest by the light from any lamp of knowledge that constitutes the achievement of modern times.

AGED WOMAN WEDS YOUNG MAN TO GIVE HIM RICHES

Becomes Bride of Nephew of Former Husband as Death Hovers
Over Her Bed.

Pontiac, Ill., May 6.—Mrs. Laura C. Martin, aged sixty years, was married to James A. Barry, a twenty-three-year-old nephew of her second husband, here, while death hovered over her bed. She wedded young Barry that he might inherit her wealth, estimated at $50,000.

Propped up in bed and so feeble the minister could barely hear her whispered answers to his queries, Mrs. Martin was made the wife of her young nephew-in-law. At the end of the ceremony she fell back in a faint. Her physicians declare her death is only a question of hours.

Barry won the heart of his aged aunt by his kindness to her throughout her long illness. He gave up his business and devoted all his time to watching and nursing the elderly woman.

Several times Mrs. Martin declared to her physicians she wanted to leave her money to Barry, but was afraid the will would be broken by avaricious relatives. Some one told her if she were his legal wife and made a will leaving all her fortune to her husband nothing could prevent his getting it all.

She told her nephew-in-law of her plan and he agreed to it. A few relatives were told of the old method of disposing of her money and they were present at the wedding.

The plan was kept a secret so far as the rest of the town was concerned and not until the wedding license was made public did the news of the strange matrimonial alliance become known.

OHIO LOBBYISTS ARE BOUGHT.

Columbus Prosecutor Is After Men

"Higher Up" in Bribe Scandal.

Columbus, Ohio, May 6.—Prosecutor Turner indicated that indictments for perjury were probable as a result of evidence given before the grand jury in connection with the bribery investigation.

It also was made clear that legislators are not alone to be punished for connection with bribes, but that lobbyists also will be indicted if it is found sufficient testimony can be obtained to bring about convictions.

The indictment was given out that the investigation of bribe offers would not be confined to men who handled the money, but those who supplied it—the men "higher up"—would not be immune.

Many of the well known lobbyists, who have been coming to Columbus for years are conspicuous by their absence at this time. Some are reported to have left the state.

Why Australia Has Thrived.
We believe it to be the case that the conditions of Australia, where reward is more proportionate to ability and effort, and less dependent than in an old country upon birth and favor, lead to the development among natives of the commonwealth, on the average, of greater activity of mind and body than is found among the natives of the United Kingdom.—British Australian.

Interpreting Our Laws.
Eileen, whose family in the old country had known her by the more prosaic name of Ellen, lost no opportunity of promulgating all the freedoms of the new country that came her way. Pre-eminent Distinction.
If there be no nobility of descent, all the more indispensable is it that there should be nobility of ascent—a character in them that bear rule so fine and high and pure that as men come within the circle of its influence, they involuntarily pay homage to that which is the one pre-eminent distinction—the royalty of virtue.—Henry C. Potter.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

There is a good, sensible saying in a fine old book that goes like this: "He that hath friends must show himself friendly—and there is one friend that sticketh closer than a brother." We flatter ourselves that we have made great progress over the ancients, but they knew the value of friendship and fraternity in the dim, distant past quite as well as we do. In fact, one of the reasons for the existence of caste in India and classes in old societies was the natural propensity of one occupation or neighborhood of men to depend upon and help the other.

And we are coming back to some of those old ideas in our clubs and fraternities. Friendship is a real asset in business. Rich men send their sons to popular or great colleges because they meet the best sort of men there. Yale and Harvard are already rivals for the most distinguished names in law, medicine and politics. And there is nothing anachronistic in this. It is the natural instinct to select the best society. It is the same in business. A man expects, and justly, too, the support of his friends. Personal interviews and influence may properly be used in the effort to succeed.

But all this implies an obligation. "Gifts make good friends." But my back and I'll rub yours. Take a favor, give a favor. No fool like the man who accepts invitations but gives none. He that hath friends must show himself friendly.

There are many men who do not consider their wives' feelings in such social matters. They don't want to go out to those formal parties and functions; they do not want to be disturbed after dinner when seated comfortably before the fire with a good cigar and the evening paper or story. So they let her go alone, and she soon comes to be known as the "grass widow," the "delightful woman with a crouch of a husband." Then the other fellow gets interested in her, and she in him, and the door is open for scandal and sorrow. All just because of a little bit of thoughtless selfishness on the part of the man who would not show himself friendly.

Human happiness is made up of little, commonplace actions which reveal the heart, the disposition and the consideration of the one towards the other. If society, or the home life is to be made worth while it is by consideration for not merely the feelings, but the plans and pursuits of the other. The man in great danger of becoming a bore, or a grouchy, or a recluse because he is working hard all day and his forces are so exhausted he does not want to be annoyed by going out at night or going to church on Sunday, or any other social obligation. The woman is in danger of letting the man take his way and she taking her own. She has no interest in his sports, or studies, or politics, or even business. She looks on those things as side issues in life.

The business, of course, is necessary to provide the money, but the sport, that is only a sop to male selfishness to appease the brute. The art of living in harmony and happiness is the most difficult of all arts. It requires on the part, both of husband and wife, mutual consideration, a common source of pleasure, some common pursuits as well as a common faith, hope and high ideals. Life has many treasures and pleasures, but the common experience of mankind gives the palm to a trusty friend. As the years go by all other acquisitions lose value and interest beside this. "The friends thou hast and their adoption tried grapple them to thy soul with hooks of steel. Then here's a hand o' thine." Such is real society.

Heart to Heart Talks.

OPPORTUNITY.

This is a plain story about opportunity and onions and—

A man.

The man is Louis Maulehaus, a Hollander, who came to Chicago a few years ago.

Maulehaus does not accept the ancient adage about opportunity having a forelock which you must grasp once for all, and probably he never read Ingalls' poem which says opportunity knocks but once and comes back no more.

He lives on the west side with his wife and young son in a little cottage with a back yard a little larger than a horse blanket.

He is fond of pickled onions.

Two years ago that he might have the sort of pickled onions they have in the old country he planted his back lot to an onion patch.

The crop was good and of fine flavor, and when the neighbors had sampled it they insisted upon buying all he would sell them.

Which set Maulehaus thinking.

Last year he rented for a small sum a couple of vacant blocks not far from his cottage and planted the entire plot with the little white pickle onions.

And during the summer Mr. Maulehaus and his wife and son put in as much odd time as they could spare in tending the onions.

About the 1st of September the onions were harvested, and the Maulehaus family realized from those choice pickle onions the sum of $1,000.

Which was a fine object lesson in "intensive farming," about which so much is being said.

Also a fine object lesson in grasping opportunity.

While some of the Maulehaus' neighbors were spending their money in the corner saloon and deploring the fact that "a man has no chance in this country," the Maulehaus family was hoarding onions.

There was other unoccupied ground in the neighborhood; but it grew up to weeds for the weed gang to cut down. Here was opportunity. And onion seed is cheap. Opportunity and onions, and the only lack was—

The man.

Louis Maulehaus sagely observes that $1,000 is a fine poultice for the backache.

By WALT MASON.

Spring! It is a precious hour—good old April, May and June. Then the nights are cool and calm, so that slumber is a balm, and the days are mild and sweet, so that life is a treat. And the first SPRING have not yet come, and the wheels do not hum, and the frogs don't yet aspire to excel the village choir, and we walk with spry tread, thankful that we are not dead. O the spring's a boon, in truth! It restores our vanished youth; even gray and puffed men feel like three-year-old again (unless they're watched) they hope with some widows to elope, and the widows, bless their souls, charm us with their carols, for we all are growing young when the good old spring is sprung. You are worse than dead, my friend, if, when winter's an end, and the joyous spring is come, you are feeling dour and glum. Any man whose blood is red, any sport who isn't dead, feels inclined to whoop and wait, feels like turning somersaults, feels like punching someone's ear, when the gladdest spring is here!

Algebra to Be Made Into Poetry.

It is reported that a French teacher has invented a system for teaching algebra in poetry. About fifty-five years ago there was an educational system in vogue by which a considerable share of the academic curriculum was set to music and sung by the teachers and classes. Even the multiplication table was one of the songs, with the five columns as a chorus, sung to the tune of "Yankee Doodle."—American Educational Review.

Jade and Amber.

How behind the times we are, just rubbing our eyes open to the loveliness of jade, while our clant-eyed brother of the east has loved it for thousands of years! Intermixed with his great love of it is the unshakable belief in its potency to bring untold riches and good health and good luck to its wearer—nay, more than this, that it is a talisman against which the shafts of ill will are splintered to bits. Jade is indeed to him the most precious of all stones and for ages has he wrought it into most exquisite and delicate shapes both in ornamental jewelry and lovely pieces of bric-a-brac.

In looking over the display of jade in the Metropolitan Art museum one is impressed with the waxen appearance of the polished jade.

An infallible home test for jade may be made by placing upon one cheek the stone in question and upon the other something in glass. If the doubtful stone is the sacred stone of the east its touch will sting like ice and even for quite a time after removal, but if it is merely glass the two cheeks will have the same mild shock of cold, warming up very quickly. The results of the amber test, however, are the reverse, amber being warm upon the cheek, and the glass imitation cold. Amber, too, when under friction, will act like a magnet, gathering up bits of tissue paper, and even to the tooth it has a different feel from glass, more like a very hard wax.

Making Love to Her Own Husband.

I have already said that I was blessed with a romantic brain and that a quiet, even state of things could not satisfy me for long. So the thought suddenly entered my head to have my husband madly in love with me.

One evening as we were promenading the bank of the Vistula, under those venerable trees which shaded the less unsophisticated loves of the beautiful Marie D'Arquin, I brought round the conversation to sentiment.

I maintained that no happiness was possible on this earth except in a reciprocal attachment, both lively and enduring! My husband, after listening for a little while, looked at his watch, called my attention to the lateness of the hour, observed that our cousins were becoming very tiresome, and that it was time to go in!—From Countess Potocka's "Memoirs."

Safer and Surer.

"I want you for my very own," said the rich old gentleman when he had succeeded in getting the beautiful girl to listen to him.

"But how can I be your very own?"

"Why—why, you can marry me, can't you?"

"I suppose I could; but don't you think, if you really want me, it would be safer to adopt a son?"—Judge.

Youthful Wi-dom.

Berk, aged four, located on running off to play with a little girl his age. His mother told him that a dog might bite him if he didn't stay at home.

He answered that he would bite the dog with his stick. "Yes," said his mother, "but you had no stick." Berk replied: "And there wasn't any dog, either."—Delineator.

President of the steel trust have always been secondary officers. The chairman of the board, the supreme official, Judge Gary, as an intimate friend of J. P. Morgan and a man trained in legal procedure, was elected to that position at the organization of the trust. Training such as Judge Gary had, was considered necessary because in the first years of the trust, his problems were of legal rather than a manufacturing nature. Now, however, the controlling interests of the great corporation believe that the organization and conduct of the trust have been such as to make it legally

Judge Gary is a very wealthy man and is abundantly able to devote his time to his personal interests. In the last two years he has been elected to several new directorates, and is now director in forty-one corporations, among which are several railroads and banks. It is understood that his name will be added to the boards of several other important railroads and banks, as his judgment is considered remarkably good on financial affairs.

NICK STIKES' AGGREGATION TO CLASH WITH BREEN'S LOCAL PLAYERS AT FAIR GROUNDS SUNDAY.

HUSKY BUNCH COMING

Line City Team Will Have Milwaukee Pitcher.—Madison Men May Catch For Janesville.—Other Base-Ball Notes.

With everything apparently all set for a victory, the Beloit Knights of the diamond, under Commander Nick Stokes, will come here Sunday afternoon to do battle with Breen's local warriors at the Fair Grounds. The fray gives promise of being one that will make the "old heads" sit up and take notice. They evidently expect a hard won battle as Stokes, manager has made arrangements to bring with him a pitcher from Milwaukee and will also have Moran, a veteran hurler, present for the game. Just which of the two men he will use is not known. "Jack" Hall of this city has signed up with Beloit as catcher. The rest of the team is made up of the best players in the Line City with a few outside men.

The opinion here, however, seems to be that Beloit is about due for a "cleaning-up" by a Janesville team and this Breen's men will attempt to do in Sunday's contest. Breen has secured Armstrong of the Madison team of the Wisconsin-Illinois league for this game and the Madison men may be used as catcher. If not Armstrong, Cronan will be behind the bat. Smith and Huttera are slated as pitchers.

probably settle definitely matters in the league.

Lincoln School. A coat of whitewash was dubbed on the Lincoln school nine yesterday afternoon in a game at the Calorie Grounds by the baseball team of the Garfield school, the latter winning by the score of 11 to 0. The Garfield players had the better of the argument throughout the contest, excepting at their work in the field and at bat. The batteries: Garfield, Mueson and Stokor; Lincoln, Blaisdale, French and Crota.

LOCAL GUNNER TOOK HONORS YESTERDAY

William McVicar High Man at Practice Shoot at Fair Ground Against Twenty-two Other Trap Shooters.

William McVicar was the high man of a squad of twenty-two trap shooters from Janesville, Beloit, Evansville and Milton Junction who participated yesterday afternoon in the weekly practice shoot of the Janesville Gun Club at the Fair Grounds. He broke forty-four out of fifty of the clay birds. He was pushed hard for the honors, however, by J. McVicar and J. W. Echlin scoring 43 each and Dr. J. W. Gibson, W. H. Frey and D. W. Johnson making forty-two. The individual scores as recorded yesterday were as follows:

J. Helmer 31
D. Miller 36
D. W. Johnson 42
W. B. Lawyer 33
W. B. Frey 42
J. Echlin 43
J. Nickerson 31

RELAY RACE CALLED OFF INDEFINITELY

Proposed Run Between Beloit and Janesville by Y. M. C. A. Teams Postponed Because of Beloit Secretary's Action.

Interference on the part of Secretary Steiner of the Beloit Y. M. C. A. has caused the indefinite postponement of the proposed relay race between teams from runners from the Beloit and Janesville associations. It was planned to have the race between Beloit and Janesville, and today was the time set for the Janesville men to make their run, with Beloit a week later. The Line City secretary, however, being up the deal by refusing to allow the Beloit team to run and the plans are "in the air" at present. Physical Director Sterling D. Campbell of this city was the one with whom the idea originated and the plans seemed to be working out finely. Physical Director Maddock of Beloit was heartily in favor of the plan but some of the arrangements agreed upon were not suitable to Secretary Steiner. An attempt will be made to secure a relay race with Milton or some other nearby place.

FORUM AND RUSK BROKE EVEN ON DOUBLEHEADER

Victory For Each of High School Society Nines Yesterday Afternoon in Games At Athletic Park. In doubleheader games yesterday afternoon at Athletic Park between the Rusk Lyceum and Forum nines of the high school in the race for the intersociety championship the teams broke even, the Forum getting away with a 12 to 1 score in the opener and dropping the second game by 5 to 8. The hitting honors are in favor of the Forum in the series thus far, but of of Tufts and on Woodie, the Princeton pitcher. A new catcher's mask has been invented which prevents the catcher from getting his eyes crossed watching men on first and third at the same time. The openings for the eyes are made into one by removing the upright bar.

With the Boxers. In his recent bouts Ad Wolgast has shown the real championship medals. Joe Jeannette has been engaged to train Carl Morris, the Oklahoma bear cat.

Sam Langford, "Porky" Flynn and their manager Joe Woodman expect to sail for England May 10.

Frank Klaus has purchased a gaso-line survey and a pair of goggles, but will not try for any speed records. Frank says, let the chicken eaters do it.

TO CLEAN UP WASHINGTON. VICTOR BERGER.

Washington, D. C.—Representative Victor Berger, from Milwaukee, the only socialist member of the house, forsook the highways of Washington recently and spent several hours in the byways and the alleys. He didn't just like what he saw behind the magnificent white stone residences and the granite office buildings. He told a correspondent that "the city beautifier" has conceded in its blind alleyways slums that could not be equaled by any slum in the country.

He explained that he had started out to find "a hole in Lady Washington's stocking" and he found many that needed to be mended at once. Major Judson, the army engineer in charge of streets and alleys of the city, took the socialist member out to inspect them last week. He whisked him through Connecticut and Massachusetts avenues and showed him all the beautiful spots. Mr. Berger said that they didn't interest him much. He wanted to see what was behind the beautiful streets and the wide avenues.

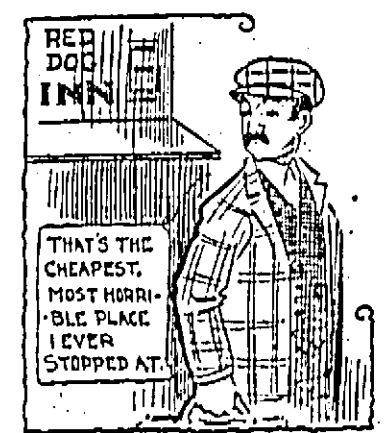

The secretary of the committee for the condemnation of unsanitary buildings, who knows more about the slums than any other man in town, showed him the other part.

When seen at his apartment Mr. Berger pointed to a picture of his little home, in the midst of a beautiful garden on the outskirts of Milwaukee. "Was I not foolish to leave such a beautiful, healthful spot to come to congress," he asked. "Washington has been called the 'city beautiful.' In Washington babies are dying rapidly, not only in the slums, but in all sections of the town, because they haven't enough clean, fresh air. I intend to make a thorough investigation into the conditions of the city and to try to have congress do something to ameliorate them."

The three spots which interested him most—and disgusted him most—were Willow Tree alley, Armory place and "Louise alley," all known as pest spots and breeding places for criminals of the lowest grades. "I saw conditions within a stone's throw of the capitol that cannot be found in any other city in the country. I think the people should know that the laws are made within sight of the rottenest hovels imaginable, where mothers are striving to bring children up, when pigs could hardly be raised there."

"In Willow Tree alley I found 171 whites and 236 negroes huddled in hovels, often living six or eight in one room, that was not fit to accommodate a single person."

Fashions in Bulgaria. Bulgaria believes in fringes, and they are over all with the rare exceptions when the underskirt, always of the best of white linen, may be scalloped at the bottom and even then the fringe effect is used in the over tunic, for the gathering of the many threads suggests to the wearer the numbers of their nation, as is their peculiar red dyed reminder of their blood, and the flowers, and grains, and fruits, embroidered on their gowns represent their industry.

The Why of Sailors' Trousers. It often happens when sailors are making a landing in a small boat that the craft grounds a few yards from the shore, when it is necessary for them to leap out, pull the boat up on the ground or wade ashore. With trousers widely cut at the bottom it is easy to adjust themselves to these or similar conditions.

Always Out of Sight. These "lend-a-hand" chaps may be all right, but there's another kind. And that's the "lend-a-dollar" chap—when! But he's hard to find.

Janesville Cubs. The Janesville Cubs have no game scheduled for tomorrow, but will improve the occasion by practicing at Athletic Park. The team is already strong and with a little more work among the players together, Manager Will Henning feels that the club will be able to meet and put down any like organizations. Several new members have been added to the line-up and with all working harmoniously, a better club of young players, such as are included in the Cubs, can scarcely be found.

SCHOOL TEAM PLAYED TWO GAMES FRIDAY AFTERNOON

In a five-inning game on the school grounds yesterday afternoon, the Adams School Cubs nipped the Adams School Eagles by the score of 5 to 1. Errors were numerous on both sides with the larger number credited against the winners. The pitchers evidently were not at fault, as neither was hit hard. Herz was the star of the season at jinking sensational catches. Batteries were Brown and Fuchs for the Cubs and Fineman and Koch for the Eagles. Announcement is made that the remainder of the game will be played later.

Garfield School Nines. The sixth grade team of the Garfield school headed the fifth grade field yesterday afternoon by a score of 15 to 1. The batteries: Fifth grade, G. Viner, pitcher and L. Mills, catcher; Sixth grade, Ernest Johnson, pitcher and Elmer Gerloff, catcher.

GO IN FOR DAIRYING IN THE "Stanley Country"

The cut-over Hardwood Lands in the Stanley Country have all the natural conditions necessary for successful dairying, such as climate, soil, pure water and an abundance of clover and wild grasses. When the timber is cut, the clover becomes King and creates pasture unsurpassed anywhere, thus paying for the expense of preparing the soil for the raising of small grains, etc. Wisconsin has over one thousand creameries and nearly two thousand cheese factories, which is one-half of the creameries and one-sixth of the cheese factories in the whole United States.

THE STUMP PROBLEM IS NOW SOLVED

This was formerly the one obstacle that the new settler in Wisconsin had to contend with. What drainage and irrigation did for the south and west, the powerful land clearing machines, clearing from three to five acres a day, will do for the cut-over lands in Wisconsin.

Why go thousands of miles away from your old home, and settle on the expensive lands of the west and south when good fertile lands can be had at $15.00 per acre in the high priced communities within a few hours' ride from the world's best markets.

EXCITING BALL GAME
RESULTED IN ONE TO
ONE TIE YESTERDAY

Roundhouse and Yard Teams Cracked
Date in Red Hot Contest At Noon
Yesterday.—Feature Plays
Predominated.

With feature plays at every fling of the ball and with excitement at fever heat throughout the eight innings of play amateur baseball at the North-western roundhouse, burst forth yesterday with exuberance of the balmy air of springtime. The final score when the whistle blew in the eighth, was 1 to 1.

It was a fierce struggle between the roundhouse men, who proudly issued their challenge to all who might wear a short time back, and the yard team, who were the first to dispute their supremacy. Stellar plays were seen numerous to mention, but the work of Gardner at short for the roundhouse who accepted thirteen chances and then drove in the lonely tally for his team in the last of the eighth with a triple, tied the air when Henry Meyer, who batted third, was no less than wonderful.

Brilliant stunts on the part of the fielders for the roundhouse was the only thing that saved the day for the clanking of the yard men was appalling at times. Pitcher Jim, Whalen, the peerless south paw, was at his best however, and in the pinches showed control. Three twirlers were pressed into service by the yard men, Roy Horn being retired in the second in favor of Fraumfelder and the latter in favor of Mike Doherty, who heroically stepped on one's foot in the sixth. The R. H. men solved his curves in the eighth, however, but only enough to tie the score the sonorous sounds of the whistle interrupting the sweetest of J. P. Mason in the capacity of umpire, occupied a dangerous position, but his decisions were accepted without any howl and anyway he was supplied with abundant weapons.

The R. H. team missed the pounding of the sphere work of Bill Sullivan who is at present suffering with the urethra, but who is relied on for great things at the next game which will be played at an early date.

"BUSY" WIFE UPSETS RAILROAD.

Missouri Southern Official Gets Divorce by Story of "Nagging."

St. Louis, May 6.—How a woman (dis)organized the entire working force of a railroad was told in Judge Kinney's court. The tale won a divorce for John E. Frederick.

Frederick is general manager of the Missouri Southern railroad, which starts at Leeper, Mo., and runs through the sawmill belt in the southeastern part of the state. It wouldn't be running anywhere if his wife, Jessie, had remained at the company headquarters, Frederick testified.

"The railroad company built a clubhouse for its employees at Leeper," he said. "Officials, office employees, and clerks had lodgings in the clubhouse, and all went well until I got married, and took my wife there to live. She disrupted the entire working force of the road. She wanted me to discharge the general auditor. She nagged the stenographers, and her constant gossiping kept everybody in hot water."

DAWES MAKES PLEA FOR ALDRICH'S BANK PLAN

Former Comptroller Says It Is Better Than Central Institution and Will Not Arouse Attacks.

Des Moines, Ia., May 6.—At a banquet for group 6 of the Iowa Bankers' association at the Savoy last night Charles G. Dawes, former comptroller of the United States treasury, made a strong plea for the reserve association plan as advocated by former Senator Aldrich as a substitute for the central bank system.

He declared that the reserve association plan had all the advantages for business interests of the central bank plan without the disadvantages which make it impracticable for adoption in the United States.

Among the advantages of the reserve association plan over those of the central bank plan, according to Mr. Dawes, is that the former preserves the present independent banking system; that it affords the assurance of proper supervision and conduct of the central reserve association by the methods of selecting the board of local associations, and that it brings about the withdrawal of the association from business transactions with the general community.

He also declared that it practically prevents the system being subject to the same demagogic attacks which destroyed the old central bank.

New York, May 6.—Former Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island, chairman of the national monetary commission, defended his plan for revision of the banking system in the United States before an assemblage of bankers from all sections of the country.

"There is no more probability of political control," he said, referring to the elaborate association of financial institutions' his plan provides for, "than there is that the various clearing houses of the country should become a part of a political machine."

McLeans Win Point in Suit Over Celebrated Diamond.

Washington, May 6.—Holding that the affidavits of Edward H. McLean and his wife, Evelyn Walsh McLean, in defense of the suit of Cartier, the New York jeweler, to recover $180,000, the purchase price of the celebrated Hope diamond, are sufficient in law, Justice Barnard of the supreme court of the District of Columbia refused to grant the motion of the plaintiffs for summary judgment. He declared the McLeans entitled to have a jury pass on the issue.

While the McLeans contended in their answer that Cartier misrepresented the value of the gem, superfluous as to the ill-fortune that has followed owners of the Hope diamond and is said to have something to do with the case.

NOBBY TREAD TIRES
"The Knobs Will Stop Your Skidding"
Will Do This For You:

Give You Powerful Skidding Protection
The big, thick, tough rubber knobs grip the slipperiest road or pavement with bull dog tenacity, preventing both slide slips and drive slips. They hold fast even on wet, greasy asphalt pavements or roads covered with snow or mud. That means much to you.

In decided contrast to other forms of non-skid tires, Nobby Treads give the same effect slipping protection through a good part of the tire's life. The knobs will not wear off in a few hundred miles of service, leaving you a ragged looking plain tread for which you have paid a fancy price.

They provide you with skidding protection that you will always find WHERE YOU WANT IT WHEN YOU WANT IT—not tangled up in the bottom of the tool box, or still worse back home in the garage. They do away with the trouble, expense and excessive tire wear always attending the use of chains.

Give You Long Troubleless Service
In wearing quality, Nobby Treads have never been approached in pneumatic tire construction. Differing from the usual method of making non-skid tires—squeezing the stock of a plain tread up into projections or ridges—in making Nobby Treads, additional stock is used—enough to form the knobs. When the knobs are finally worn smooth, a plain tread still remains—good for many more miles of service.

Vulcanizing
Our work is fully guaranteed to give the following service: Retreads to last for 2,000 miles; rebuilds to last for 2,500 miles.

PRETTY TOUGH TOWN

VISITING MOUNTAINEER PREPARES FOR THE WORST.

"Plug" Wilson, Marvels When He Finds Streets and Houses Without Light at Night—Keeps His Gun Handy.

"Plug" Wilson, fresh from the mountains, alighted at the little railroad station in southeastern Arkansas and looked about him. It was growing dark, but no lights could be seen in the town. No light marked the station, though from within could be heard the tick-tick-tick of a telegraph instrument.

This impressed "Plug" as being somewhat remarkable. Several men, idling about the depot, stared at him through the gloom.

Finally he sauntered up to the dark window of the depot and stared in at the agent, who was just completing the sending of a message. His face could scarcely be seen in the gloom.

"Partner," said "Plug," "where's the hotel?" The station agent, having completed his message, came to the window and peered into his face.

"It's right back o' here," he said, "about two blocks. You can tell it by the high picket fence."

"Hain't it got a sign?" "Plug" asked. "Don't they put up hotel signs in this country?"

"O, yes," the agent said, "but there ain't light enough to see it by."

"Why'n't there any light?" asked "Plug." "I don't see a light in town."

"You just bet there ain't no lights," said the agent. "No, s'ee?" "Plug" felt an agreeable chill coursing through him.

"Ah!" he said, "that's it, is it?" He felt for the gun he had carried so long he couldn't remember when he started carrying it.

With some difficulty, and keeping a tight hold on his weapon, the mountain man found the hotel. The clerk, an old man with a long beard, lighted a candle long enough to show him the room assigned to him and then blew it out again in a hurry.

This action impressed the mountain man as being commendably prudent. He tried the windows of his room, pushed the back of a chair under the doorknob, and, picking his trousers and gun under his pillow, slept peacefully all night.

In the morning he went cautiously downstairs.

"Pretty tough town, hey?" he asked the clerk.

"No, sir!" he said with emphasis. "There ain't been an arrest here since the Weekum was treated Christmas for bein' drunk." The mountain man's jaw dropped.

"Geet!" he said. "Then what was all the lights put out for?" The boy looked at him pityingly.

"Say—ay," he said, "where'd you come from? Didn't the skeeters bother you none last night?"

Dom Manuel's Scrappy Dog.

Two ladies walking in Richmond Park, London, about a week ago were horrified to have the little black and white terrier that accompanied them suddenly set upon by a fierce and very much in earnest bulldog. The ladies shrieked and the master of the bulldog appeared at once and proceeded to separate the combatants, using a whip freely and pulling his dog away from the smaller animal.

When the terrier had been restored to his owner the young gentleman raised his hat and apologized humbly for the trouble his dog had caused and expressed the hope that the little terrier would not suffer from his rough treatment and that the ladies would recover from their alarm. Whereupon the two ladies discovered that the pallid young man who was so very courteous was none other than the de-throned king of Portugal, Dom Manuel, who was taking his customary morning stroll in the park.

No Black on Black's Palette.

Nature uses no black in any part of her work—I will not except the black berry and the so-called black plum. On a bright, clear day, shadows on the snow are pale ultramarine blue; under a blue sky in midsummer the color of the placid lake is cobalt blue and the shadows of the grass are lilac; on a weathered gray boardwalk they are nearly as blue as the sky itself. The palpitating atmosphere of a warm July day lifts the coloring of the landscape to a higher but softer key; instead of reducing it with gray; and in the autumn when the sugar maple's leaves are turned to gold, the shadows on the trunk, and every gray rock in the vicinity, are tinged with strong lilac. In fine, when the sun shines, everything, even the shadow which we are prone to believe is gray, is complete with color.—F. Schuyler Mathews.

Climbed Too High.

Write (whose husband, the local mayor, has just been knighted)—I have you heard from the man who offered to trace our pedigree?

Husband—Yes, he has found out more than enough.

Write—What did you pay him?

Husband—Fifty pounds—to hold his tongue.—London Opinion.

For Instance—

Scott—A physician says in this article that music affects the circulation.

Mott—You bet it does. I've heard music that made my blood boil.

LIKE RAT IN A TRAP

EMPEROR PAUL OF RUSSIA WAS KILLED BY CONSPIRATORS.

Courage of Assassins Was Keyed Up by Liberal Potations of Champagne—Officers Got Revenge on Tyrant Monarch.

The blow was to be struck on the 11th of March. Platon Zoubov gave a supper on that evening, and all the generals and officers who were in the conspiracy were invited. Champagne was drunk freely and great excitement prevailed.

At 11:30 Pahlen returned and asked if everything was ready. Yes, was the reply. At midnight the conspirators, divided into two groups, marched to the palace. Arrived at the palace, the first band marched towards the emperor's dressing room, adjoining his bedroom, whilst Pahlen went to the apartments of the empress and arousing the lady-in-waiting, told her to inform Maria Rodovna.

The noise, however, awoke the emperor. He jumped out of bed and made for a secret door which communicated with the empress's apartments. But he himself had previously ordered this door to be locked, and whether it was that the key was not in the lock or that he could not find it in his excitement, he was caught like a mouse in a trap.

The emperor of all the Russias, who, only a few hours before, had terrorized a vast empire and held millions in trembling awe, except into a chimney, to hide himself. Entering the room and finding the bed empty the conspirators thought that the emperor had escaped. Some, like Zoubov, lost courage and wished to retire, but General Bennigsen checked him, and, searching the room, discovered Paul in the chimney. They dragged him down by the legs. He was shivering and speechless.

At that moment Ilibirov, commanding a section of the soldiers of the Semenovsky Regiment, arrived in the anteroom. The conspirators, on hearing the noise, were again frightened and Bennigsen rushed out to see what was happening. Paul was now loudly shouting for help and trying to escape. The conspirators, maddened by their furious hatred of the tyrant and by their fear of danger, struggled to hold him back. Zoubov struck Paul with his tabatiere. Several officers threw themselves on the desperate emperor and one of them removed his scarf and tied it around the autocrat's throat. Paul still resisted for a while, but they tightened the knot and when Bennigsen returned he was met with the words, "It is done." Paul had breathed his last.

The officers whom he had tortured for four years had taken their revenge.—From Hapgood's "The Curse of the Romanovs."

Before and After.

When a girl is engaged to a man who believes him when he tells her he would love to have her walk on him with her tiny feet; after she is married to him she would be satisfied to have him willing to put her rubber on her without acting as if it were killing him.

BETTER LIGHT
for EVERYBODY

If your grocer gave you 40 ounces of coffee for the price of one pound, you would feel as if you had gotten your money's worth, wouldn't you?

Mazda Lamps give $2\frac{1}{2}$ times as much light as the ordinary carbon lamps without any increase in current cost.

Think of it! A dollar purchases 250 cents worth of clear, steady, white light under which colors show up in their true values.

It's the safe, sane, sanitary light to use, no matches, ugly odors, smudge or smoke.

Maybe you haven't had your store or home lighted up the way it should be on account of the cost.

Mazda Lamps bring Electric Light within reach of everybody. No one can afford not to use them. Mazda Lamps are a good investment. They are the last word in high efficiency lamps.

FIRST TROOPS LEFT JANESVILLE JUST A HALF CENTURY AGO

CAPTAIN ELY'S COMPANY DEPARTED FOR MADISON EN ROUTE FOR WAR FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

IMPRESSIVE FAREWELL

Was Given the Volunteer Soldiers, Captain and Company Receiving Many Handsome Gifts—Roster of the Company.

Fifty years ago today, Captain Ely's company of volunteers departed for Camp Randall at Madison, on their way to the war. This company of volunteers was the first command of troops to leave Janesville for the front. They became a part of the famous "Second Wisconsin" regiment. The day was cool and pleasant and a large proportion of the population of the city turned out to greet the company, witnessed the ceremonies of the occasion, and bid them farewell. At about ten o'clock a procession was formed near the residence of C. H. Conrad. The company formed in advance and were followed by the Janesville Light Guard under Captain Wheeler. Several other departments under Chief Engineer, W. B. Britton followed by the Common Council of the city, headed by his honor the Mayor.

The procession proceeded up Main street and then Milwaukee street to the Hyatt House, where the speaker's stand was situated. Here they halted and W. H. Ebbetts presented in behalf of the ladies, a beautiful silk flag to Captain Ely's company. Mr. Ebbetts also presented Captain Ely himself with a beautiful sword, on behalf of the bar of this city, of which he had for many years been a member. Capt. Ely thanked the ladies for their beautiful gift and also the members of the bar for the sword. Gov. Harlow then presented to Capt. Ely, on behalf of the citizens of this city, a pair of splendid gauntlets and a silk sash, to which the captain made an appropriate reply. The members of the company were each presented with a copy of the New Testament by the congregations of the Methodist, Congregational, Baptist and Presbyterian churches.

From here the company advanced to the depot where a flag raising took place. J. P. Wheeler, who related the story of the flag raising in the Gazette, then with the song and prayers of their friends, the company boarded their cars and departed amid long hearty cheers and the good wishes of the entire throng.

The following is a list of the officers and privates of the company which left today to serve their country:

Commissioned Officers,
George B. Ely, captain.
A. B. McLean, Lieut.
Dana D. Dodge, Ensign.
Non-Commissioned Officers,
Albert F. Wade, Orderly Sergeant.
George F. Sanders, Sergeant.
William A. Jamison, Sergeant.
Henry Silman, Sergeant.
John C. McDonald, Corporal.
John J. Little, Corporal.
Charles W. Atherton, Corporal.
Donelson Webster, Corporal.

Privates,

ANOTHER LINOTYPE MACHINE ADDED TO GAZETTE EQUIPMENT

Latest Model Type Casting Machine Installed Which Sets All News and Increases Paper's Facilities.

Another Linotype, which is known as Model No. 4, quick change, and is the latest pattern of type casting machine produced by the Mergenthaler Linotype Co., has been added to "The Gazette's" machine equipment. This machine is a double deck or two-machine sized type as large in size as 48 point, and will be used for setting all the heads which appear on the various news articles in the paper. In fact, every head in tonight's paper has been set on this machine, in process which formerly and is usually done by hand. The time required for the composition of these heads is about one-quarter of that which would be necessary if they had been hand set. The machine also has a great number of new devices which have been perfected within the past few years and which improve it vastly over the older models of Linotypes. The addition of this machine to the equipment of "The Gazette" gives it a battery of four Linotypes and an unlimited capacity for handling advertising news matter and all type composition. The tremendous call during the day for composition equipment, made necessary the increase in the machinery of the plant, and "The Gazette" will be able to put on additional features in news service.

When it is considered that every line of type, in fact every individual letter appearing in "The Gazette," is hand set each day, the need for improved and adequate facilities for handling the amount of material which appears daily in "The Gazette," is apparent. The paper has over one hundred and ten active correspondents, from Milwaukee to Madison and in all of the large cities within a radius of twenty to forty miles, aside from the rural correspondents which furnish the paper with an endless supply of news matter. In addition to the material which is sent almost daily from this source, the big news gathering agencies, of which "The Gazette" is a member, send us the Associated Press, the United Press, The North American Newspaper Syndicate, contributed to the making of a modern up-to-date newspaper.

Then there are the special feature ideas of which "The Gazette" handles a goodly number. These all require the use of type-setting machinery to place them in shape for the readers of the paper. A number of additional news features are in contemplation and it will be the aim of the publishers to keep space with the times in newspaper making in the future as in the past. The suggestions and assistance of the paper's many friends and patrons have been helpful in securing results, which have been the means of producing an extraordinary good newspaper and the same assistance will be valued in the future.

The Blessed Old Maids.

No women have done more for humanity and for the individual than the old maid reformer and the old maid unit. There is none to whom we owe a deeper debt of gratitude, and none whom we could not better spare, says a writer in the Commonwealth. For be sure of this: God sends old maids into the world to do the work that the rest of us leave undone.

Tobacco for Soldiers.

In all Lord Wolsey's campaigns he made it a rule, where possible, to allow each soldier one pound of tobacco a month, which he considered a fair allowance. In Italy the military authorities recognize the need of "one of the comforts essential to the troops, and cigars are served out to them with their daily rations.

IN FAME'S SPOT-LIGHT

Actors on the World's Stage of Events Upon Whom is Beating the Calcium Glare of Public Interest.

BY VINCENT TOWNE

Luke Lea.

Is Dr. Wiley pulling off another pure food demonstration?" asks the Vice-President, smiling suspiciously. "It's only Uncle Shelby Cullom, making pay for the new kid," says the Vice-President, nodding toward the clock room, whence comes now a series of soothing croonings.

"There, now! Cootechie, cootechie, coo! 'Ais a boy! Go to sleep!" Uncle Shelby, with characteristic Lincolnian pose, sits Congressional Record in hand and congress gaiter on the rocker of the colossal cradle for whose manufacture the Senate carpenter has had to knock together eight of the regulation solid Santo Domingo mahogany packing cases that Senators use for shipping their farmers' bulletins back home.

Yes, it's a jolly big cradle, for the Senate's new kid is a whale of a young 'un. Six feet four, and still growing! He is fifty years younger than his Uncle Shelby, also than his Uncle Ike Stephenson, who has ordered him a special room, a sister of the ill-starred "Pauline Wayne," presented to the tenant of the White House. Daring railroad delays, Uncle Ike thinks she may arrive by the time the regular session convenes in the winter.

But let's look at the Senate's new "kid" and his pedigree. When Andrew Jackson dwelt in what now is Tennessee, he had two young cronies, John Overton, who became his law partner, and Luke Lea, who became one of his colonels in the Florida wars. Both of these men were great-grandfathers of a second Luke Lea, of Nashville, who is thus a Jacksonville Democrat on both sides of the family. Luke Lea, second, was born on April 12th. And the year was 1819, which will make him thirty-two on Wednesday next.

Upon the day his mother named him after his distinguished ancestor who placed his feet upon the Congressional path which that same forebear had trod three generations back; for the first Luke Lea had sat in the House of Representatives while his friend "Old Hickory" was sitting in the presidential chair.

So our Luke Lea's mother was determined that history should repeat itself. And modest mother she was. All of the others in the land have destined their sons to be Presidents, and no less.

Mother Lea believed that if she wished hard enough it was bound to come to pass, but her son Luke went her one better in this business of shaping destiny. When a youngster of eight he donned a wishing-cap of his own and ordained that he should be not a more Representative, like his great-granddad, but a United States Senator. So he hustled through school at such speed that he was able to land his B. A. from the University of the South when only nineteen.

In the summer of 1903 he carried off his law degree. And only seven and a half years later his wish came true. He was elected United States Senator by the sovereign State of Tennessee.

From the cap and gown to the toga in seven and a half years! Never before has our history recorded such a feat of jumping. No force could resist that duplex psychic current of optimism, maternal and filial.

But we are outrunning our story. Young Lawyer Lea's shingle had been out less than three years when he made his first splash into fame as delegate to the Nashville Convention of May, 1906, the noisiest and most dramatic political gathering ever held within the bounds of the old Volunteer State. And it was the subject of our little discursive star who started the noise, who was the bright particular star in the thrilling drama.

Let us recall the events of that exciting day a little bit in detail, for they were the making of our young man.

The convention had been called to nominate a Democratic governor and is split up into Cox and Patterson factions. Chairman pro tem Abernathy orders a roll call of counties, on a vote for temporary chairman, and all goes well until the clerk yells "Davidson," from which county two lots of delegates bob up, each voting against the other. Pandemonium at once breaks out, delegates with flushed faces demanding the recording of one faction's vote and then the other's. Then Chairman Abernathy precipitates a riot by recognizing the Cox delegates.

Through the seething mass of humanity a young giant in gray ploughs his way down the aisle and makes for the stage. Mounting the platform in one bound, this gray apparition stands before the Chairman and with excited shouts and loud thumps upon the table challenges the right of the Cox delegates to vote. Then, before the Chair has recovered from its astonishment the platform is crowded with wildly gesticulating figures, whose voices rise above the babel of dissenting tones issuing from the floor. The auditorium below becomes the battleground of a seething mob and the police work hard to keep the stage from being carried by storm.

Having pounded in vain with his gavel, the Chairman lays it down and advances to the front of the stage to plead for order. But no sooner has he dropped his symbol of authority than the gray giant, the young lion of the Patterson forces, seizes it and boldly usurps the functions of presiding officer.

The Senate's New "Kid."

It is enough for the Patterson men. Seeing their self-constituted leader with gavel in hand, they take him up and place him atop the chairman's table, where he now waves the mallet above all heads. Then another table, to the right, is mounted by Chairman Abernathy and he is surrounded by a bodyguard of Cox delegates while a cordon of Patterson partisans closes about their leader.

The two presiding officers try to cry each other down while yelling commands, but Luke Lea, the giant in gray, is handed a megaphone and his rival is outvoted. The convention adjourns without taking the vote, but in the next session the young man's faction carries the day and the election of Malcolm Rice Patterson is assured.

Lea was then twenty-seven. A year after he thus became known as "the man who made Patterson" he broke away from that Governor, affiliated himself with the prohibitionists, founded the "Tennessean" and selected as its editor the ill-starred Carnrick, who in a year more was shot by Cooper in revenge for editorial sarcasms.

When the Tennessee legislature met in last January to elect a successor to Senator Overton, the "regulars" felt assured that they had the young insurgent safely blocked, but when the legislators started home for a two days' recess young Lea set out for a roundup, with the result that he was elected Senator by a majority of two votes.

On March 4th, the day he became Senator, he was 31 years 10 months and 20 days old, and the Constitution says that no man under thirty shall sit in the upper house of Congress.

He is said to be the youngest man ever elected to the Senate, which may be literally true. Win. James Bryan became Senator from Florida a few years ago when 31 years 2 months and 16 days old, but his governor appointed him to fill a vacancy and he was not elected.

Nevertheless, the "boy orator of the Platte," was hailed as a prodigy when he donned his toga at the age of thirty-five. But Luke Lea, as we have seen, beats the Hoosier's record by over three years.

Spot-Light Sparklets.

CHIEF WILKIE'S GHOST STORY.

CHIEF WILKIE, of the Secret Service, is not a spiritualist, or anything of the sort, yet he once had an experience that has since puzzled him not a little.

Sometime ago while visiting his friend, Dr. Oscar de Wolf, in London, he fell asleep in his chair and dreamed that he held in his hand a message that read:

"Dear Doctor: Do you remember Katy McGuire, who used to live with you in Chester? She died in 1872."

Immediately upon awakening Wilkie repeated the words to the doctor, who sat in the room.

"What the devil do you mean?" asked Dr. Wolf. "Did you ever hear of Katy McGuire?"

"Never in my life," said Wilkie. And after recovering from his astonishment the physician explained that while living in Chester a girl of the name given had assisted his mother in her housework, returning from a trip in 1873, he found that she had died during his absence.

"But I haven't thought of her for twenty years," added Mr. Wilkie's host.

EMPEROR'S REBUKE TO A SNOB.

A DIPLOMAT in this country recalls a rebuke which he heard the aged Emperor of Austria administer to a snobbish noble who had lamented the scarcity, in Vienna, of personages exalted enough in rank to be cultivated as his acquaintances.

"Were I like you, sir," replied the Emperor, "in such anxious search for blood equals, I would find companions only among the dead Hapsburgs."

SHAH EMPLOY'S AMERICAN PRODIGY.

A REMARKABLE example of precocity is W. Morgan Shuster, the young American whom the Shah has just appointed Treasurer-General of Persia. When only twenty-four he became collector of customs at Manila, and while still in his twenties was made a member of the Philippine Commission, which directs the affairs of our insular possessions in the far East. He is now only thirty-four.

SOME ROYAL NICKNAMES.

ENGLAND has a nickname for every native celebrity. King George's, "the Sardine," was given him when he was a youngster. King Edward was generally spoken of as "Paddy," but the Queen and his brothers and sisters addressed him in his later and stouter years as "Tummy." His son, the late Duke of Clarence, was dubbed "Cuffs and Collars."

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

S All Love to the young knight: "I am the humble task. I am the high adventure behind the visored mask. I am the fire of youth that falls not with the years. I am the master of passion and comforter of tears."

—Theodore Roberts.

A few weeks ago an Italian princess, lady-in-waiting to Queen Helena, was stricken to death by her lover who immediately afterwards killed himself. Of course you read about it at the time.

But did you, I wonder, feel, beneath the scandal and sensation of the case, its insignificance as a testimonial to the primitive, world-wide, not-to-be-doubted power of the universal passion?

Just think, these two people, no important in the eyes of the world that the smallest newspaper in the remotest country town chronicled to readers the next morning the details of their love affair, were as powerless in the grip of this passion as the feeblest and least important of mortals.

Of course, it is an old, old story, but as I read the cabled reports of this affair I was impressed anew with it, and wanted to bring it home to you now.

Yesterday in the park near my home I came upon two young people sauntering along with the arm-in-arm oblivion of the last stages of heart disease.

To the casual observer they were both thoroughly commonplace, thoroughly uninteresting and thoroughly homely.

He had a wobbly chin, red hair and a somewhat ruptured complexion. She was thin and sallow, with a large nose, prominent teeth and straight, dark hair that hung in unattractive wisps about her face.

They were both plainly dressed and evidently possessed of but little of this world's goods.

And yet, on the faces of these two eminently commonplace people shone a contentment and a happiness that not the costliest pleasures of earth could have enhanced.

Just think—merely by gazing into each others homely faces and knowing that each was beloved by the other, these two people were finding as great happiness as the richest men and women in the world can have.

Just because you see this sort of thing every day you forget the significance and power of it, but they are just the same.

We rave of the injustice of the fate that makes it possible for one man to have fine linen and rich food and magnificent home and limousines and finely bred horses, jewels, lawn, and leisure, while another spends long, toilsome hours each day to earn enough to keep himself and his family from starvation.

Ah, but suppose fate had let all these things be evenly distributed, but had given to one man the power to feel this strange, overpowering happiness and withheld it from another.

Wouldn't that have been a much less happy state of affairs?

Suppose we had to buy this happiness as those humble folk felt and the Princess lost. What great store we should set upon it. What high prices it would bring.

But now that it is "without money and without price," do we half appreciate it?

I wonder.

Forgive me if you do not like this whimsical strain, but if you do, go beyond what I have said and dream and wonder with me.

The proper care of the hair, is a topic which will bear considerable repetition. Many persons are exceedingly careless in the treatment they accord their "crowns of glory," and need constant reminding that they may mend their ways.

Such carelessness is due largely to ignorance as to what the hair really is, and to a mistaken notion as to what "the proper care of the hair" really means.

The hair is a part of the skin, or a modification of the cuticle, and should never be treated as though it were something entirely apart from the skin. The hair follicles, from which the hair grows, and the papilla which supplies the elements necessary for that growth, must be in good condition or the hair itself will deteriorate in texture and decrease in quantity.

When the conditions governing the growth of the hair are normal, the hair falls out and new hair grows in again continuously, but as long as the hair does not fall out alarmingly, no worry need be felt. During, or just at the close of, the hot season, the hair usually falls out more than at any other time of the year. Should the period of shedding continue too long, or new hair fail to grow in place of that which is lost, some remedial treatment is necessary.

If your hair and scalp are not in a normal state of health, it is well to consider just what kind of care you are giving them, before you attempt any measures to remedy existing conditions. Perhaps you are following exactly the wrong methods of treatment, and all that is necessary is to stop what you are now doing.

For instance, if you are brushing your hair and scalp too vigorously night and morning the chances are that you are irritating the scalp, weakening the hair follicles and causing the hair to fall out and dandruff to form. If you are using too strong a shampoo preparation, without doubt it is destroying the life of the hair and extracting the natural oil from the scalp.

In regard to brushing, too strenuous measures are worse than no brushing at all. A slight friction of the scalp is beneficial. The moment that friction is carried to the point of irritation, it becomes a menace to the health of the scalp, interferes with the growth and beauty of the hair, and is a frequent cause for baldness.

Answers to Questions

Evelyn S.: The use of oil externally and internally will do more toward building up your depleted flesh than anything else I can recommend. Take a dessert-spoonful of olive oil twice a day, and about two hours after the meal is the best time.

You take it in any medium you fancy, if the oil is disagreeable to you. An oil rub twice a week will also help very much in improving the condition of your skin. If the oil is warmed before applying it will be more readily absorbed.

Alberta: Isn't it puzzling to select from the many directions which are so contrary in expression, just the ones which will suit your case? You have my sympathy and I would gladly help you in your quandary. It is quite possible, that I would advise you to do something entirely opposite to what you have already considered and then you would be still more puzzled. However, write me all about your needs and I will at least advise you conscientiously and to the best of my ability, and you can use your own judgment about following the advice. You need not confine your questions to any certain number. We have no cast iron rules in this department, and is a frequent cause for baldness.

The Charger at the Funeral.

The charger led at the funeral of a cavalry officer is a relic of the custom when a horse was sacrificed at the grave. An officer led the charger behind the bier to the brink of the grave and it was there slain and thrown upon the coffin. The last occurrence of this kind took place at Treves, Germany, in 1781.

Important Alaskan Industry.

Alaska's fishing industry, next in importance to mining, gives employment to 12,688 persons, of whom 8,823 are natives. In the last five years the territory has sent us a wealth of $43,000,000 in salmon alone. The total output of fish in 1910 was worth $11,181,388.

Idea in Paper Manufacture.

It is proposed to manufacture paper from pulped bluegrass timber. Tests have been carried out at English paper mills and are said to give a product equal to that made from African esparto grass.

MOST of the things that worry us, "Don't matter much."

"There's nothing that's of great concern except to live, and love, and learn."

Something for Breakfast.

One gets tired of the same round of breakfast dishes, and to escape monotony we must break away from them. Try serving the eggs some morning all broken in the egg cups with a bit of fried chopped bacon on top of the egg to give flavor and variety. Omelets are so good and may be served with such various seasonings that one need not tire of them.

Household Hints.

All fat from soups should be saved. When an otherwise fresh tablecloth has a few spots of grease caused from cream, wet the spots with ammonia and iron over a piece of clean blotting paper, and the traces of grease will disappear.

Household Hints.

When opening a can of red peppers (phallopia), put the peppers with the liquor not used in a glass can and pour over a tablespoonful or two of olive oil. They will keep indefinitely. Try this with the next bottle of olives; the result is as good.

A Good Cough Remedy.

Boast a lemon until very hot in the oven, cut open and squeeze into a cup with three or four tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Use freely when ever the cough troubles you. It is an excellent remedy and agreeable to take.

Relieve Maxwells.

Literature.

"I have read this poem over a dozen times," said the assistant editor of the Highbrow Magazine, "and I can't make head or tail of it. 'Good,' exclaimed the editor, 'We'll hit it up for a feature, together with an announcement denying that true poetry is dead. And don't forget to send a check for $1.25 to the fellow who wrote it.'—Lippincott's.

Good Idea in Street Cleaning.

A Pennsylvania man has applied the vacuum principle to a street cleaning wagon, powerful enough to pick up pieces of rubbish equal in size and weight to halves of bricks.

A BIT OF FALSE TEACHING.

Some one who tinctures his philosophy with a questionable quality of wit, or discolors it with outlandish wit, has said that "the reason why Romeo and Juliet are still famous as lovers is that they died almost as soon as they were married."

To which most persons of observing nature will enter protest.

"Romeo and Juliet," like every other great love story, remains a favorite because it expresses something innate in the human mind.

It is something that is as strong as life itself. In every human heart there is an ideal of love. One may not realize it in his or her own experience, but the ideal remains unchanged.

And it is because of a world-old hope and desire in the breasts of every man and woman whom God has created that the old love stories live. Love was intended to be the greatest force in the world. When God peopled the earth with creatures made in His image He placed in their hearts the germ of this great force—the germ of universal peace and happiness. His first lesson to us was of love. He taught us that His greatest attribute was love, and impressed upon us His desire that it should be ours.

Love is the flux intended to fuse the whole world into an indissoluble bond. It was not intended alone to hold man and woman together in harmony and joyous peace, but to hold men and women as the great aggregation making up the population of the earth in the bonds of unity. The selfishness of human nature has held in abeyance the realization of the original intention, but the love between man and woman which creates the home and holds its members together in the closest of all bonds still dominates, as is shown in every well ordered home throughout the world.

Despite the divorce courts and the gossip of the streets and "busy marts of trade," there are still plenty of illustrations to prove that there is such a thing as married happiness, and that it is quite possible for a man and woman to remain lovers though married. Every one of us knows of plenty of illustrations to prove this contention.

Some one says, "If love survives, then why family disputes and quarrels?" Lovers quarrel, don't they? And usually think more of each other after each tiff. It takes a long time for the interests of two people to become so merged that they will keep in harmony. Let us consider. Every marriage contract performed outside the lines of consanguinity represents the bringing together into the closest of human relationship of two people of widely different inheritances as far as pedigree and temperaments are concerned. In disposition and everything else they have a legacy from the past. Each has certain peculiarities inherited perhaps from some remote ancestor, yet something real and vital when it is placed in contact with the qualities of another derived from a similar source.

Not only are these two different in disposition and temperament, but also in about everything else. The compact they have entered into must inevitably bring some of these traits into conflict. From this conflict must come the condition that permits of that molding that makes for beauty in the relationships of life.

And it is during these first years that the real test of love comes. Sometimes it does not serve to soften the conflict, and disaster follows. Then the world points to the wreck as an evidence that the stories of "Romeo and Juliet" and the hosts of other lovers written over the pages of history are all drama. The world forgets to point out the thousands that survive the shock.

SATIN AND CHIFFON CLOTH.

Dark blue satin and blue embroidered tan chiffon cloth are combined in a gown patterned on lines shown in today's sketch. The satin is used for the lower part of bodice, tunic and deep band around bottom of skirt, the latter headed with the embroidered chiffon. This has blue velvet ribbon run through large buttonholes, the joining covered with a large velvet flower on left side. Similar use of velvet ribbon is made on the bodice and sleeves, as our readers will notice. Yoke and stock are of allover lace, with a plastron of silver embroidery.

This makes a stunning gown for afternoon affairs or luncheons.

IN THE SAME OLD WAY.

May 6.—The most striking figure in the French revolution was Maximilien Robespierre who was born May 6, 1758. A crafty politician he kept in the background in most of his schemes and had his work done by Danton and Marat. On September 1792 the national convention was organized, the monarchy was abolished and France was declared a republic. There were two parties to the convention and Robespierre's party won. The leaders of the opposition were sent to the guillotine, and the Reign of Terror was on. The revolutionary party led by Robespierre sent thousands to their death by the guillotine. Marie Antoinette was one of the victims. Robespierre and his party were overthrown and the murderer of women and children went to the place of execution as a victim himself in 1794. And when the knife fell that severed his head from his body the eyes were greeted by the cheers of thousands who only a short time before had hailed him as a victor.

New Contest for Women Readers

We have passed the menu contest, the suggestions for the garden, and now come to that stage of household duties that is most dreaded by the husband, feared by the wife and yet when it is all over, really one of the most essential features of the household life—house cleaning.

The Feature Editor of The Gazette is very anxious to learn from the women readers how they clean house. While it is a dreaded period for all, usually it does not last long and when over and everything is sweet and clean, what a satisfaction it all is.

For this coming week's contest Methods of Housecleaning is to be the topic to be written upon. Tell how you accomplish this transformation scene. Write your trials and tribulations and let some one else share your mistakes and successes with you.

Write your articles on one side of the paper clearly and concisely and have them in The Gazette office, addressed to the Feature Editor by Saturday, May 13. Tell whether you have your rugs whipped and beaten at home, whether you find it more economical to send them out, whether you can save by making the man of the house, or boys, if there are any, do this work, how you manage your meals. In fact, go into details as to your methods.

The garden contest is showing great results and as for the menu contest the judges will be busy for many days trying to decide which is the best list for the first honor. These contests are open to all, no matter whether they have won one of the prizes offered in a previous contest or not and it is to be hoped that many will respond to the different "Suggestion Contests" that are being conducted.

The prizes this week will be the same as for the one just closed, as follows:

First prize—One dollar.
Second prize—"Silverenoli," silver cleaner.
Third prize—Fifty cents.

Unrest

By Byron Williams

We dream of Venice far away
And long for Tasso's magic day,
While at the door our Venice lies Forgotten as the hour hand flies
The halls of perfumes that we smell,
We never know how it is well,
But that we're radiant more fair
Than that which blends our native air

The joys we have are flung aside—
Tethys would find a bride!
The one he has is pure and sweet,
But she lies captive at his feet!
And thus, ungrateful, foolish band,
We seek the unexplored land!
Through foreign paths we mull our roam,
And leave Contentment here at home!

LONGEVITY AND HEREDITY.

Insurance companies have learned that longevity is largely determined by heredity, and hence the importance of family history in this respect. One man may use intoxicants, tobacco, tea and coffee all his life and reach an advanced age, while another may avoid these and die young. Longevity of ancestors comes from the inherited results of hygienic living, usually accidental, through several generations. But patriarchy can be conserved or squandered. The care free life in the open air of a man who is temperate and eats anything may be more healthful than that of the sedentary liver who worries constantly about what to eat when he can find nothing else to worry about. To adopt good rules of living and reduce them to habits so that they require no mental strain to carry them out seems to be the wisest plan, but only the young can expect to do this without much patience and effort.

The Dandruff Germ

And The Guinea Pig.

When Dr. Lassar and Bishop made a pomade by mixing scales of dandruff and vasoline which they afterwards rubbed on a guinea pig, they were contributing to science more than they knew. The application of the pomade caused the pig to lose its hair and become bald.

This was merely one of the preliminary steps which made possible the discovery of Newbro's Herpicide. Afterwards establishing beyond question the existence of the dandruff germ, a remedy was needed to kill this parasite.

There was nothing which would do this until Newbro's Herpicide was placed upon the market. Being the first recognized remedy for dandruff, it has long been called the "original remedy." Herpicide kills the germ, prevents falling hair and stops itching of the scalp. Don't take a substitute; you can always get the genuine article.

Herpicide is for sale at drug stores. Applications may be obtained at good barber shops.

One dollar size bottles are guaranteed.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Ford of the Arkansas.

They were still in the midst of the yellow featureless plain, but the weary horses had slowed down to a walk, the heavy sand retarding progress. It was a gloomy, depressing scene in the spectral gray light, a wide circle of intense loneliness, unbroken by either dwarfed shrub or bunch of grass, a barren expanse stretching to the sky. Vague cloud shadows seemed to flit across the level surface, assuming fantastic shapes, but all of the same dull coloring, imperfect and unfinished. Nothing seemed tangible or real, but rather some grotesque picture of delirium, over merging into another yet more hideous. The very absence of those surrounding water seemed burdensome, adding immeasurably to the horror. They were but specks crawling under the sky—the only living, moving objects in all that immense circle of desolation and death.

Keith turned in his saddle, looking back past Neh—who cawed in his seat, with head lolling on his breast as though asleep, his horse plodding after the others—along the slight trail

they had made across the desert. So far as eye could reach nothing moved, nothing apparently existed. Fronting again to the north he looked upon the same grim barrenness, only that far off, against the lighter background of distant sky, there was visible a faint blur, a bluish haze, which he believed to be the distant sand dunes bordering the Arkansas. The intense dreariness of it all left a feeling of depression. His eyes turned and regarded the girl riding silently beside him. The same look of depression was visible upon her face, and she was gazing off into the dull distance with lack-luster eyes, her slender form leaning forward, her hands clasped across the pommel. The long weariness of the night had left traces on her young face, robbing it of some of its freshness, yet Keith found it more attractive in the growing daylight than amid the lamp shadows of the evening before. He had not previously realized the peculiar clearness of her complexion, the rose that shone through the olive skin, or the soft and silky fineness of her hair, which, disarranged, was straggling becoming under the broad brim of the hat she wore, drawn low until it shadowed her eyes. It was not a face to be easily associated with frontier concert halls, or any surrender to evil; the chin round and firm, the lips full, yet sufficiently compressed; the whole expression that of pure and undisturbed womanhood. She puzzled him, and he scarcely knew what to believe, or exactly how to act toward her.

"Our friends back yonder should be turning out from the corral by now," he said finally, anxious to break the silence, for she had not spoken since he ended his tale. "It will not be long until they discover Hawley's predicament, and perhaps the welkin already rings with profanity. That may even account for the blue haze out yonder."

She turned her eyes toward him, and the slightest trace of a smile appeared from out of the depths of their weariness.

"If they would only remain satisfied with that. Will they follow us, do you think? And are we so far enough away by this time to be safe?"

"It is hardly likely they will let us escape without a chase," he answered slowly. "We possess too much information now that we have their rendezvous located, and 'Black Bart' will have a private grudge to revenge. I wonder if he suspects who attacked him! But don't worry, Miss Haddock; we have miles the start, and the wind has been strong enough to cover our trail. Do you see that dark irregularity ahead?"

"Yes; is it a cloud?"

"No; the Arkansas sand dunes. I am going to try to keep the horses moving until we arrive there. Then we will halt and do whatever Neh has packed behind him, and rest for very far off now, and Keith had seen enough of their surroundings to locate the position of the ford. Slow as they must proceed, three hours more would surely bring them to the bank of the stream. They discussed their plans briefly as the three sat together on the warm sand, revived both by the food and the brief rest. There was not a great deal to be determined, only where the girl should be left, and how the two men had better proceed to escape observation.

Fort Larned was the nearest and safest place for their charge, none of the party expressing any desire to adventure themselves within the immediate neighborhood of Carson City. What her future plans might be were not revealed, and Keith forbore any direct questioning. His duty plainly ended with placing her in a safe environment, and he felt convinced that Mrs. Murphy, of the Occidental Hotel, would furnish room, and, if necessary, companionship. The sole problem remaining—after she had rather hesitantly agreed to such an arrangement—was to plan the details as to permit the negro and himself to slip through the small town, clustered about the post without attracting undue attention. No doubt, the story of their escape had already reached there, embellished by telling, and serious trouble might result from discovery. Keith was surprised at the slight interest she exhibited in these arrangements, merely signifying her acquiescence by a word, but he charged it to physical weariness, and the reaction from her night of peril; yet he took pains to explain fully his plan, and to gain her consent.

This finally settled, they mounted again and rode on through the lanes traversing the sand dunes, keeping headed as straight as possible toward the river. The ford sought was some miles down stream, but with the horses' thirst mitigated, they made excellent progress, and arrived at the spot early in the evening. Not in all the day had they encountered a living object, or seen a moving thing amid the surrounding desolation. Now, looking across to the north, a few gleaming lights told of Fort Larned perched upon the opposite bluffs.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Landlady of the Occidental.

Keith had crossed at this point so frequently with cattle that, once having his bearings, the blackness of the night made very little difference. Nevertheless, in fear lest her pony might mislead over some irregularity, he gave his own rein to Neh, and went forward on foot, grasping firmly the tired animal's bit. It was a long stretch of sand and water extending from bank to bank, but the water was shallow, the only danger being that of straying off from the more solid bottom into quicksand. With a towering cottonwood as guide, oddly misshapen and standing out gauntly against the slightly lighter sky, the platoon led on unhesitatingly, until they began to climb the rather sharp uplift of the north bank. Here there was a plain trail, pounded into smoothness by the hoofs of cavalry horses ridden down to water, and at the summit they emerged within fifty yards of the stables.

The few lights visible, some stationary, with others dancing about like will-o'-the-wisps, revealed imperfectly the contour of various buildings, but Keith turned sharply to the right, anxious to slip past without being challenged by a sentry. Beyond the brow of the bluff other lights now became visible, flickering here and there, marking where a straggling town had sprung up under the protection of the post—a town composed mostly of shacks and tents, but now with its defenses cleverly concealed by the enveloping darkness. The trail, easily followed, led directly along its single street, but Keith circled the outskirts through a wilderness of the cans and heaps of other debris, until he halted his charges beside the black shadow of the only two-story edifice in the place. This was the Occidental, the hospitality of which he had frequently tested.

A light streamed from out the front windows, but, uncertain who might be harbored within, Keith tapped gently at the back door. It was not opened immediately, and when it was finally shoved aside the mere crack, no glow of light revealed the darkened interior. The voice which spoke, however, was amply sufficient to identify its owner.

"Is that ye agin, Murphy, a playin' av yer dirty tricks?"

"No, Mrs. Murphy," he hastened to explain, "this is Keith—Jack Keith, of the 'Bar X.'"

Stenography 2,000 Years Ago.

It seems incredible, but it can be proved, already in the oldest times there were stenographers who took down the speeches made in the Roman senate or in public. They were called notarii and we find a place in Suetonius where Augustus is angry because the stenographers reported the speech of Caesar for Metellus in a very imperfect manner.

Little Bed-Time Tales By EDITH HAVENS

The Violets and the Weeds

LIKE a pretty pond of purple was the flower beds of violets. And it was such a wonderful morning. The sky was cloudless and the air was soft and cool. It was a joy to be alive. A cheery breeze paused to kiss the little upturned flower faces as he passed along and they trembled with happiness. The tall hollyhock at the farther end of the garden waved back and forth as the breeze danced by and then he began to sing a pretty flower song. The violets paused to listen. And it was just at this time, when all was peace and contentment, that something terrible occurred, for all of a sudden the violets discovered that the awful army of the weeds was peeping up through the ground.

Again came the wail of the violets. "The weeds, the weeds, they will kill us," they cried. "There is much hope. Surely some day will come to us." "Hoped!"

The thought swept across the garden like magic and of a sudden a wonderful quiet prevailed.

How brave the little violets were. Then night settled down upon the flower garden, and one by one the violets dropped their heads in sleep. Overhead in the sky the good moon frowned a little because he noticed a rustling among the flowers. The weeds were at work and they were growing alarmingly. And all the while the violets were dreaming that help would surely come. And it did, for the next day just as the weeds were almost choking the violets to death the good gardener came along and tore them all from the ground.

"You see," said the hollyhock, after the gardener had left, "what a splendid thing it is to hope. Flowers and little folks, no matter how terrible the trouble, always win the battle if at the very beginning they believe that they will."

The hollyhock bent close to the ground.

THE THEATERS

The Great American Play.

In recent years a few plays have made such big hits that two or three companies have been sent out in them, and in one instance four organizations were started, but the number lasted only a short time. That play was not big enough or popular enough to win public support for four companies, yet it was one of the biggest successes of the time. In this fact lies the proof that Eugene Walter's "Paid in Full" is the greatest and most popular play ever produced in America. All last season, beginning in August, 1909, and continuing until last May,

Jokes have been told; the Adonis-like person in the middle has his friendly remarks with the various comedians with the bones and "Tambor." Personal grace has been shown and beauty added because of the handsome paraphernalia used in the first part settings. The sentiment of the balladist may have caused you to be possessed of a feeling of intoxication; the festive wit of the comedians has amused you; the charming acts of the first part in its entirety has possibly astonished you, yet the glimmer, frolic and fun

ity of the city as a feature. While here the palatians are doing work for the new auditorium and gymnasium at Milton college as well as some settings for several of the neighboring theatres. E. B. Marshall is the manager in charge of the work and E. Cox and Mr. Celein are doing the painting.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

Miss Billie Burke is to revive "Mrs. Dot."

Sarah Bernhart will appear in Paris in "Everywoman."

Thomas Dixon is to write a play with Lincoln for the hero.

Hurr McIntosh will leave the stage again and open a studio in Los Angeles.

Victor Moore is next season to appear in a circus play called "The Love of the Lots."

Elmo Ferguson will appear next season in "Dolly Madison," which has been re-written.

Next fall Frank McIntyre will appear in New York in a new play by George Bronson Howard.

Rose Coghlan is to appear in an adaptation from one of her old Wallack successes, entitled "A Wife Widow."

After the close of his special engagement with Mrs. Plake, Henry E. Dixey intends once more to return to vaudeville.

It is reported that Richard Bennett is to be among the stars next season under the management of the Liebher company.

Klaw and Erlanger intend to produce "The Pink Lady" with an American company in London some time next autumn.

It is announced that Mascagni is at last to produce his opera, "Ysobel." The production will be made in Buenos Ayres, Argentina.

Frances Starr is to drop "The East-End Way" and appear in a new play next season under the management and direction of David Belasco.

Mrs. Alphonse James, the widow of Louis James, the actor, is to star in a play by Mrs. Emerson Hodgson Burnett, called "Judy O'Hara."

Israel Zangwill has placed his new play, "The Gods of War," with Sir Herbert Tree, who will use it in the fall at His Majesty's theatre in London.

Another new rural drama is in the market, which bears the title, "The Golden in Maine." This play will have Raymond Dodd and Nellie Gill as its chief actors.

A. G. Dehameter has purchased the dramatic rights of "Cy Whitaker's Place," a novel of Cape Cod folks by Joseph C. Lincoln, author of "Cap'n Bill," "Mr. Pratt," etc.

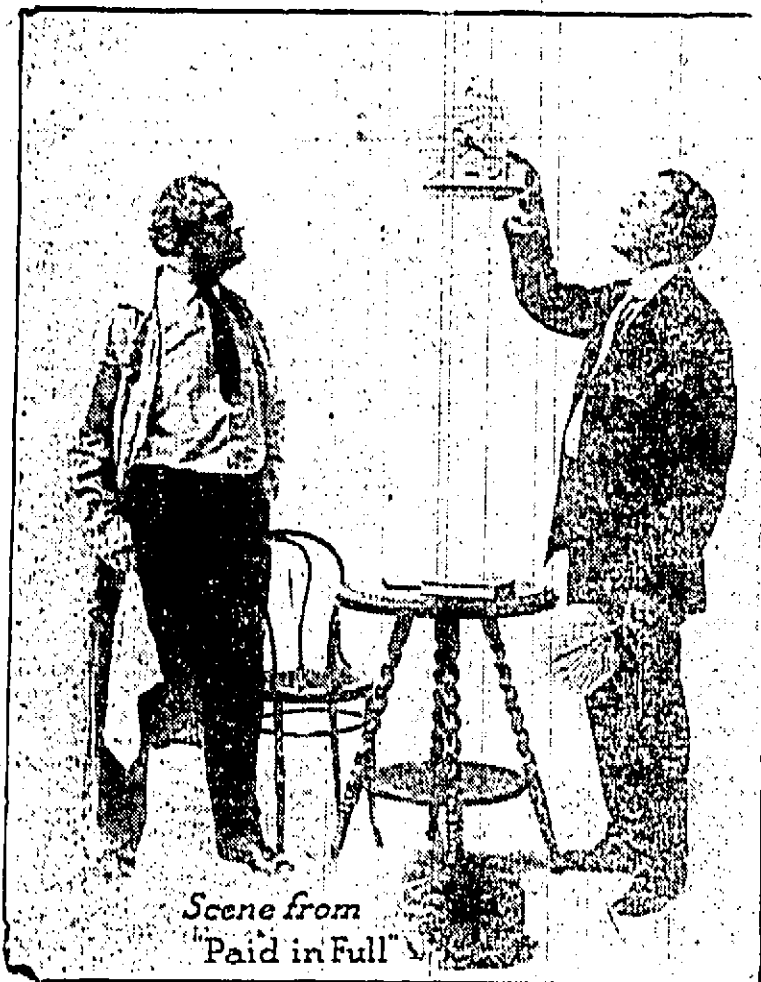

Robert Hilliard, who is closing his fourth season in "A Fool There Was," will probably go to the Pacific coast next season, as he has not been west with this play.

Tyrone Power, who is meeting with marked success as the monk in Paul Wisnuck's "Thinks," has declined an offer to appear in a drama of which the principal character is Judas.

Charles Frohman denies the report that he is to leave the London theatrical field. He says he has not leased his London theatres to any other managers, but has merely made temporary arrangements to co-operate with various English actor-managers in the production of plays. He will produce "Peter Pan" again next Christmas in the English metropolis.

Scene from "Paid in Full"

live companies appeared in "Paid in Full" all over the United States. This same number is going over the country again this year. This adds a chapter to theatrical history never before written. It shows conclusively that "Paid in Full" occupies a place in public admiration no other play has held, and it is doubtful if another ever attains it. The broad interest possessed by "Paid in Full" is demonstrated by the fact that it scored as big a hit in one part of the country as in another. They like it as well in San Francisco and in New Orleans and Minneapolis as they did in New York where it ran for two years. Never has a play been in such demand for return engagements. In this respect it has a record unequalled in theatrical history. It has been played as many as five and six times in cities unnumbered, and it is a wonderful illustration of its tremendous appeal that in every instance the audiences have been larger each time it has returned. Therefore its coming to this city will awaken deepest interest when at the Myers theatre, tonight, the United Play company presents it with a New York cast and production.

Macmillen.

Minneapolis Journal, Saturday evening, March 4, 1911.—Mr. Macmillen is a joy. It is rarely that Minneapolis or any other city has the privilege of hearing such a violinist. The concerto, the only one of its kind in the repertoire, is a dramatic and appealing composition and Mr. Macmillen played it as to the manner born. It makes excessive demands, but he was equal to them all. His intonation was beautiful, his feeling ardent and compelling, and his tone a wonderful combination, full, round, melting and brimbling. He essayed and achieved some of the most brilliant double-stopping. It is a pity to American patriotism to realize that here is a genuine son of American soil who has not stopped anywhere short of the heights. It is interesting to know that he ascribes it all to his mother, who made him work. After being recalled half a dozen times, he played solos, the difficult E major prelude from Bach's sixth violin sonata.

Macmillen will appear at the Myers theatre, Tuesday evening, May 16.

Dixey and Hackett.

Henry E. Dixey has made a great success in "The Naked Truth," a comedy which is still running in London, with Charles Hawtrey as the hero. The part is said to fit Dixey better than any he has had in years. It will shortly be done in New York. Mr. Dixey is under a long time contract to Wm. A. Brady, Ltd., and is to be given a chance to play in classical comedy shortly. James K. Hackett has commenced his tour under the direction of Wm. A. Brady and is now appearing on the Pacific coast in revivals of many of his former successes, including "The Prisoner of Zenda." Although a well-known star for many seasons, this is Mr. Hackett's first visit to the regions beyond the Rockies.

John W. Vogel's Big City Minstrels.

Minstrelsy has been, and promises to continue to be, the favorite form of amusement for four-fifths of the theatre-going public—and well it should be—for no manner of a performance can include such a variety of material necessary for the edification of the multitude; besides it is the cleanest and best of all amusements. Then, there are no waits.

Promptly at the appointed hour the curtain rises, and from that moment until the finale you have fun without a blush. Songs of sentiment by the world's greatest vocalists, comic ditties by the best comedians on earth, who also furnish humor without a

"The Rosary."

The following is the story of "The Rosary," which comes to the Myers Theatre Saturday, May 13, matinee and evening.

Bruce Wilton has amassed a fortune which he has lavished on his wife, Vera.

Their household is a happy one but into it creeps a note of menace. No one knows it at first save Father Kelly, a priest, the former tutor of Bruce. Quietly he goes to work with his sharpened sense to find the person who is causing the adverse influence in the household. Almost on the verge of discovering the cause, calamity descends upon the Wilton house. Bruce's fortune is swept away, and in such a manner that he believes his wife the cause of his ruin.

His wife and he are separated, the home is destroyed and yet the cause of all this disaster is unknown. Father Kelly, with a faith that moves mountains, goes on quietly, serenely and confidently with but one purpose in view, the happiness of those he loves.

He solves the mystery and lets the white light of truth into the minds that have been darkened by evil.

More than this, he finds the one who has caused all the misery and restores the home.

"The Rosary" is probably the most successful play of the year, it having recently closed a three months' run in Chicago, a two months' run at the Garden Theatre, New York City, and is now creating considerable comment in Boston where it is playing at the Globe Theatre.

Some New Scenery.

A corp of scene painters from the American Scenery company of Detroit, Mich., are at the Myers theatre this week and will probably be there during the next, working on some new borders, drops and tormentors for the stage settings. Much of the old scenery will be revived and onto a good deal of new will be added to the equipment of the local play house. At present the artists are suspended from every available gallery and are turning out some very good scenic effects. There is a chance that a new front curtain will be one of the new additions with some scene from the victo-

CHIROPRACTIC POINTS THE WAY TO HEALTH

Illustration No. 12. Prominent business man found he had a weak heart and that the beats were not regular. He sold out his business expecting to retire. He finally called on us and we found 2nd and 4th dorsal vertebrae subluxated. By repositioning these vertebrae we removed the pressure from heart nerves which restored it to normal, and he is now well. This man went back into active business.

We have a great many cases of weak heart, and all get well by taking Chiropactic Adjustments.

BILLIOUSNESS, ENLARGED LIVER AND MALARIA.

Illustration No. 13. A successful plumber had enlargement of the liver from a contracted fever and malaria. Severe cramps were always felt. When examined by the Chiropactor the cause of the disease was immediately located. This case was entirely overcome by adjusting spine at 7th, 8th and 9th dorsal vertebrae, thus loosening the nerves to liver and reestablishing the mental impulses, which is life.

In biliousness the liver is often overworked by eating more food than needed, and then when it can not perform its function any more, it is forced into activity by laxatives, until the trouble ends in

The first ray of light leading to its discovery and development was unknowingly stumbled onto sixteen years ago, when hearing was restored to a man by a crude adjustment, out of which process sprang the most scientific way of handling all diseases.

Chiropactic is so wonderfully different from any other method that nothing short of a study of its principles will ever reveal its merits. The old way has always been to doctor symptoms with remedies or treatments. But Chiropactic searches out the cause of the symptoms and has nothing whatever to do with drugs, surgery, osteopathy, magnetic healing, hypnotism, Christian Science, faith cures, etc., but is a distinctly separate and independent science, able to eliminate the cause of disease without the assistance of any of these, or any other methods, excepting the fundamental hygienic laws of protecting and rebuilding the body.

Chiropactic removes the cause of abnormal function commonly called disease. This is a broad statement, but it is proven thousands of times in actual practice.

Free Booklet

To everyone interested in better health, we will send absolutely free a little booklet which thoroughly explains the Science of Chiropactic, and which gives a list of diseases which have been overcome.

Every sick and ailing man and woman should read this booklet. It is written so that everyone can understand it. It contains illustrations showing how people get sick, why they get sick and how they get well. The book is absolutely free. It will be mailed anywhere on request.

Our mission in life is to benefit. This booklet points the way. Be sure and send for it today.

chronic constipation. These people can all become well by Chiropactic Adjustment, freeing nerves to liver and bowels. We have more of these cases than any other kind. It takes considerable time when case is chronic, but can always be successfully handled. If laxatives are continued or stimulants it will end in stroke of paralysis or other serious troubles.

Illustration No. 6. A case of a lady with a bad cough and bronchitis caused by a subluxation of the 6th cervical vertebra pressing the nerves running to the bronchial tubes and causing severe coughing spells. This was readily overcome by adjusting the vertebra to normal position. Similar cases are of frequent occurrence and all people get well after taking Chiropactic Adjustment who were affected by the same trouble.

Illustration Number seven shows the 7th cervical vertebra of the neck out of place. A case in point is that of a man who had paralysis on one side, and the heart was weak, caused by the 7th dislocated vertebra pressing on the nerves leading to the brain and shutting off the nervous energy. By adjusting the vertebra, the normal condition was restored and the man got well.

We have a great many of these cases, and 98 per cent get well.

CATARH AND DEAFNESS.

Illustration No. 4. A young man was deaf and suffered with catarrh for many years. We adjusted the third vertebra of his neck, freed the nerves to ears, nose and head and he is now free from catarrh and deafness.

Illustration No. 2 shows the first cervical vertebra of the neck out of place. This will cause Neuritis in the head. A woman who had suffered for many years was in this condition. She came to us and we found that the subluxation was pinching the nerves and cutting off the nervous impulses, which is life. Several Adjustments got it back in place and the lady was never troubled since with Neuritis. A great many of these cases come to us. The subluxation is not always in the same place and the neuritis is in the different parts of the body.

Illustration No. 11. A nationally known man suffered with dyspepsia and indigestion for many years. Adjustment was given at fifth, sixth and seventh dorsal vertebrae, restoring the nervous energy to the stomach, and he can now eat any kind of food without trouble. Hundreds of our cases are of this nature. All get entirely well and at a smaller cost than you would pay to a doctor, without getting permanent relief.

Illustration No. 10. Lady blind most of time for 5 years; tumor on one side of eye-balls. The vertebra of the first and second cervical were shutting off the nerves leading to eyes. She suffered intensely. These vertebrae were adjusted to normal position and she regained her sight and became well. Cases of eye diseases of various kind are brought to us. All have been made well when adjustments were taken. We find that pressure on the nerves leading to different parts of the body causes different diseases; so the subluxation is not always at the same place in the spine.

CONSUMPTION AND BRONCHIAL TROUBLE.

Illustration No. 9 Consumption in a young lady. The second and third dorsal vertebrae were found in a lateral subluxated condition, throwing a pressure on the nerves that run to the lungs, causing congestion of the lungs which threw the patient into consumption. By replacing the vertebrae and removing the pressure from these nerves it gives nature a chance to restore perfect health.

We have had a large per cent of these cases, and all are now well. Consumption is not contagious, as very many people associate with these cases daily, and yet are no more liable to contract this disease than men engaged in other callings.

Bronchitis is started with a cold or catarrhal condition of the head, the discharge therefrom running down the bronchial tubes which irritates the nerves and causing contraction of the muscles which produces a subluxation of the first and second Dorsal vertebra. The result is Bronchitis and Consumption. By replacing these dorsal vertebrae we restore the natural condition and the disease disappears immediately. The superiority of the Chiropactic science, Hamilton stock company. In Sydney and Melbourne, it is said she achieved great success as Lady Mackenzie in "The Scarlet Pimpernel," which had a long run. Her portrayal of Eva Tanqueray in "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" has been compared favorably with that of Mrs. Patrick Campbell.

Natural Inference.

A New York newspaper chronicler the arrival in that city of an American boy who speaks no English. It is inferred that the little chap converses habitually in the baseball dialect.

Rambler Motor Cars

THE Rambler Offset Crank Shaft is a necessary advantage in a car to be used on country roads or in crowded city traffic. It enables you to throttle down on high gear no faster than a man usually walks, or glide along slowly on high gear behind a heavily loaded wagon. You take the hills easily, as there is no need to rush the hard pulls, and much gear shifting is avoided. Notice a man about to mount a bicycle. He always adjusts the pedal in that position where it will receive to best advantage his full weight on the first downward stroke. This position of the pedal is slightly forward of the center of the crank shaft of the bicycle. If he mounted when the pedal was directly over the center of the crank shaft, his weight would fall directly on the bearing and the first downward stroke would be retarded and, therefore, weak. In the Rambler motor, at the time of greatest pressure the connecting rod is perpendicular, and the crank shaft is in a position to receive the greatest power from the explosion. This feature, with the Straight Line Drive, big wheels and tires, Spare Wheel and accessible Engine, is most appreciated by the experienced owner.

The new catalogue is ready. Send for it. Tell us the kind of car you like and we will mail you the Rambler Magazine.
